

ROMMEL IN RETREAT AS BRITISH WIN FIRST ROUND OF FURIOUS TANK BATTLE

PRIVILEGES OF DEMOCRACY—Here's the way to get good government—just make your wishes known on this ballot and drop it in here! That's the lesson three young voters-to-be learned from a chat with Charles W. Ashhurst, who manned the ballot box in the polling place at Clark Howell school yesterday. The youngsters are Fourth Graders Vada Burdette, 9, of 243 13th street; Sheila Wesley, 9, of 1055 Piedmont avenue, and John Gardner, 10, of 856 Juniper street.

Elders Stay Away From Polls, Children Learn Power of Ballot

Fulton, DeKalb Voting Light in Every Precinct

Election day in Atlanta and Fulton and DeKalb counties yesterday passed as quietly as a summer Sunday on the farm.

Voting was reported extremely light in every precinct and polling place, but veteran officials of the Democratic party breathed easily all day and worried never a moment that the party's candidates, nominated in heated balloting September 8, would not carry every box. The primary selections never have been upset in a general election, they said.

Election Excitement. Most excitement of the day seemed to be the arrest by city police of two men at the polls at the Sixth Street Pharmacy, on Peachtree near Sixth street. Women poll workers reported they couldn't get in the place when the poll was scheduled to open, and Officers Jim Galvin and M. H. Key reported they found Tom Chotas, owner of the pharmacy, and Louis Whiteman, of a Boulevard address, in the place. The two were fighting and the officers found what they described as an improvised dice table in the rear.

Both Chotas and Whiteman were charged with "drunk—disorderly conduct," and were scheduled to face charges at 8:30 o'clock this morning in recorder's court, according to Police Chief M. A. Hornsby.

Fulton Voting Light. Outside that one incident, which was not reported to the ordinary office, the election was without exceptional event.

Voters, a handful in the morning and a handful in the afternoon, straggled in to exercise their constitutional rights, but the vast majority of those qualified

Youngsters Shown 'Mechanics' of Vote Casting

By CELESTINE SIBLEY.

Probably more children than grown people went to the polls during the general election yesterday.

While their elders stayed away from the voting places in great numbers, hundreds of bright-faced, inquisitive youngsters, piloted by their teachers, went to the polls to see democracy work.

"It's too good an opportunity for them to miss," a principal at one of the city schools said. "The citizen's participation in government sounds vague and difficult when you try to tell them about it. It's much easier when you can bring them down here and show them how the citizen goes about saying what kind of government he wants."

"Down here" was an abandoned basement lunchroom, where half a dozen election officials had set up tables, voting booths and a ballot box—used up to noon by only half a hundred citizens.

One at the time, the classes, from the youngest group of kindergartners to near-high school age boys and girls, filed in and watched the adults identify themselves, claim their ballots, go into

More Japs Land On Guadalcanal Despite Attack

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(P)—Braving American planes based on Guadalcanal and American destroyers prowling its waters, the Japanese have landed more troops on the island, the Navy reported today, this time to the east of the embattled airfield and its defenses.

The new landings were made Monday night after United States destroyers during the day had bombed the foe's positions west of the island, the Navy reported today, this time to the east of the embattled airfield and its defenses.

The landings were made Monday night after United States destroyers during the day had bombed the foe's positions west of the island, the Navy reported today, this time to the east of the embattled airfield and its defenses.

This latest development, posing a grave threat to the American defenders now in the middle of two strengthened enemy forces, followed a warning by Secretary Knox against false optimism over the fighting for the Solomon Islands and for control of South Pacific supply lines despite a "very signal success" which he saw in the initial phases.

Jap Strength Crippled. Although the Japanese strength was crippled in the long sea and air battle off the Stewart Islands northeast of Guadalcanal, Knox told a press conference, the foe "still has a fleet of formidable proportions" and "we haven't any doubt that they will come back."

Knox coupled his warning with an announcement that an American task force "got" two more Japanese ships.

18 EXECUTED. BERN, Nov. 3.—(P)—A Swiss Telegraphic Agency dispatch from Prague said today that 18 persons were executed for high treason there last week, 13 being killed on October 27 and five on October 29.

Axis Artillery Asked To Cover Withdrawal

CAIRO, Nov. 3.—(P)—The British Eighth Army has won the first round of a great desert tank battle which developed after a British breakthrough of Axis lines Monday morning, front dispatches reported tonight.

After nearly six hours of bitter fighting, Marshal Rommel withdrew his tank force from the battle and called on his artillery to cover his retreat, these reports said.

Frank L. Martin, Associated Press correspondent with the attacking armored forces, told of the German defeat in a delayed dispatch sent Monday night.

He said the battlefield was littered with wrecked Axis tanks and trucks, many of them still burning, as the British pressed on, under a powerful air umbrella.

Big Battle. The big battle took place at the northern end of the Alamein line, about 16 miles west of the positions held by Rommel when Lieutenant General Bernard L. Montgomery launched his offensive 11 days ago.

After Rommel withdrew his tanks, he rushed all available anti-tank guns into the area in a desperate effort to halt the British who already had passed the last line of fixed fortifications at that point.

British official quarters today described the engagement as "an armored battle on a considerable scale" and said heavy fighting still was in progress. Despite the withdrawal of the Axis force, neither side was claiming a definite decision in the larger phases of the battle.

(The Berlin radio said the British were attacking with 300 tanks, mostly American General Sherman and General Grant models. If this estimate is accurate it would indicate a tank battle that could decide the course of the whole campaign.)

Huge Clash. (The German news agency DNB quickly described the battle as the biggest tank engagement yet fought in the desert and said fighting continued on a vast scale despite Allied losses of a third of their 500 tanks.)

A brilliant slash by Australian infantry set the scene for the tank melee which began yesterday at Tel El Akakir—"Hill of the Wicked Men"—a height about 16 miles west of what had been the front line stretching from the Mediterranean to the Qattara Depression when the British, 11 days ago, opened their offensive with heavy and continuing Allied war support.

The Australians cut through the minefields, swung right toward the coast and pocketed a considerable German force in a narrow corridor between the coastal railroad and the shore.

Tighten Pocket.

While they pushed through the dunes to draw the pocket tight, Rommel threw at least a part of his cautiously husbanded armor toward the coast to break the Cu De Sac. The tanks hammered hard at the Australians through yesterday's predawn hours and when it was light Lieutenant General B. L. Montgomery wheeled his tanks through carefully cleared lines in the minefields to meet the Axis steel.

While the tanks moved into major action for the first time in this offensive the Allied Air Force hit a new peak of activity, cascading bombs on Axis positions so accurately and so relentlessly that German soldiers surrendered to the advancing British infantry without a fight.

Around Tel El Akakir the battle smoke and dust rolled high and the tread-marked sand was dotted with knocked-out enemy tanks and strewn with bodies, mainly those of Germans who died trying to break out of the Australian trap.

While the armored action centered in the north, infantrymen fought savagely all along the line and steady forward push, cleaning out mines and enemy posts and

Hess Described By Scots Mayor As Nazi Envoy

LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 4. (P)—The London Daily Mail today quoted Sir Patrick Dollan, former lord provost (mayor) of Glasgow, as saying that Rudolf Hess came to Britain in May, 1941, came "with the authority of Hitler and his colleagues," and had hoped that he (Hess) would be given gasoline and allowed to return to Germany within 48 hours.

Hess parachuted from his plane in Scotland, and the mystery of his dramatic trip never has been officially explained. Soon after he left Germany the Nazis said he was mentally unbalanced and had flown to Britain as a self-appointed peace apostle. He is held by the British as a war prisoner, and Soviet Russia recently suggested that

Chaplain, in First 'Chute Jump, Hopes 'Boss' Isn't Mad at Him

It was the chaplain's first jump from an airplane at the Parachute School at Fort Benning. He was in the door waiting for the command, "Go." And like all normal men, he was sweating—and sweating plenty. Then the command, "Go."

The chaplain was heard to mutter something as he leaped into space. One of the jump-masters turned to the other.

"What did he say?"

The other grinned. "He said he hopes his boss isn't mad at him today."

Textbook Browsers Cost Georgia $6,527

In a spirit of optimism stimulated by the collection of $6,527.98 in fees and expenses during the last 30 days, the Professional Textbook Browsers of Georgia will report today on the schoolbook diet they

Just what books will merit the official finger will not be known until the State Board of Education meets at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the State Office building. The readers merely suggest, the board decides.

All that was known yesterday was that this will go down in the history of a reportedly economical state administration as the most expensive bit of reading the state ever has financed.

Returns Not In.

Complete returns were not in yesterday when the fancy figure of $6,527.98 was totaled out of the expense accounts turned in by the 24 committeemen and women whose job it has been to pluck the wheat from the chaff in the thousands of offerings of the innumerable schoolbook publishers.

The last high mark for a professional browsing session was in 1938, during the so-called spendthrift Rivers administration. At that time, 40 men and women cleared up the job in half the time and charged only $4,940.04, according to records of the Department of Education.

The expense accounts of the current group of professional readers include $10 a day for services and expenses, and a traveling allotment of 5 cents a mile.

The committee, including school teachers and superintendents of Georgia, were appointed September 28. The heaviest expense item turned in so far has been from J. E. Culpepper, of Echols county, whose traveling allowance sur-

Senator Lodge Is Behind in Massachusetts

By The Associated Press. Thomas Dewey, crusading young attorney, was elected New York's first Republican governor in 20 years when last night his Democratic opponent, John J. Bennett Jr., conceded defeat shortly after 10 p. m. (E. W. T.)

It was Dewey all the way as voters in the most populous state baled in the war's first nationwide election. He garnered a huge margin of victory upstate and cut drastically into the usual Democratic margin in vast New York city.

Presidential Timber.

By his latest feat at the polls, Dewey projected himself emphatically into the 1944 presidential picture. He was an early leader in the 1940 Republican convention but lost out to Wendell L. Willkie. The returns from the elections elsewhere in the nation were full of potential upsets. In New York's neighboring state of New Jersey, Albert W. Hawkes, Republican and former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, held a strong lead over the incumbent Democratic senator, William H. Smith.

Down in Oklahoma, Senator Josh Lee, Democrat who made a strong bid recently to ban all alcoholic drinks from areas in and around Army camps, was trailing

Silver Star Sales Set Record

Growing every day in popularity, The Constitution's Silver Stars of Honor broke all records on Monday and Tuesday—as new thousands sought them to wear in honor of husbands, fathers, sons, brothers, sweethearts and other loved ones in our country's armed forces.

Now well past the 50,000 mark in distribution, these symbols of patriotism are familiar sights on every Atlanta street. They have been mailed to practically every town in Georgia and to 41 other states in the nation.

The Stars of Honor, made of sterling silver, may be obtained at the Want Ad desk of The Constitution for 20 cents each, plus 2 cents federal jewelry tax. Or if you prefer you may mail in the coupon which appears on page two of this issue, with 25 cents, for each star, the added 3 cents to cover postage and handling.

Farm Leaders See Food Shortage in Manpower Program

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Heads of three major farm organizations recommended tonight a four-point manpower program in place of what they called "misdirected efforts" of government agencies to fasten "far-reaching bureaucratic controls and restrictions" on farmers and farm workers.

Walker Named Acting Head Of Milton High

Board Also Grants Military Leaves of Absence to Several.

The Fulton county board of education appointed former Superintendent Knox Walker as acting principal of Milton High school at Alpharetta at a meeting yesterday. Walker takes the place of H. R. Adams, who is away on leave of absence because of illness.

The board also granted military leaves of absence to John G. Lewis, principal of Hapeville High school, who has obtained a commission in the Army; to Miss Treva Whitaker, who has joined the WAACs, and to J. J. Pharrow. It denied such a leave to Miss Lucile Vinson, who has accepted a position as a junior hostess with the Atlanta Motor Race. The board emphasized that it could give military leaves only to those going into active military or naval service.

Regarding the recommendations of the Fulton county grand jury for increasing the pay of teachers, the board adopted a resolution declaring them to be in line with its own policy. It instructed Superintendent Jere Wells to arrange a meeting with the county commissioners and Fulton county's representatives in the legislature to discuss legislation which must be passed before the board can grant raises.

Wells was also instructed to study Governor Talmadge's order raising the state pay of teachers 25 per cent and to report what action is necessary for Fulton county to obtain its share. The Governor's order affected only that part of teachers' salaries paid by the state.

Public Warned Against Buying Frozen Autos

Harry Sommers, southeastern regional director of OPA, yesterday pointed out that the order forbidding sales of 1942 model Chevrolet, Ford and Plymouth four-door, hard-topped sedans to civilians, has been extended to December 31.

"Even persons who obtain rationing certificates authorizing purchases of new passenger automobiles may not buy any of these frozen models," Sommers said. The order originally was put into effect August 18, to halt civilian sales of these models until the Army and Navy could fill their requirements.

Albert S. Goss, master of the National Grange; Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and Ezra T. Benson, executive secretary of the National Council of Farmer Co-operatives, said in a joint statement:

"Under the guise of the war effort, a social revolution is being perpetrated upon the American people. We are convinced that unless these policies are immediately abandoned, we face a disastrous shortage of food."

Parran Optimistic.

Their declaration came at the end of a day of discussion of the war manpower situation, which brought an estimate from Surgeon General Parran that the country's doctors would be able to take care of civilian health despite needs of the armed services; a statement from Selective Service headquarters that more activities would be added to the 34 previously listed as essential, and word from an informed source that the War Manpower Commission's management-labor committee report recommended to President Roosevelt that selective service be placed under the commission's jurisdiction.

The same source, who did not wish to be quoted by name, said the report urged that voluntary enlistments in the armed forces be stopped and recommended that the United States Employment Service be given almost exclusive power over hiring.

Selective Service said the new essential designations, intended for the guidance of draft boards in granting occupational deferments, covered 50 occupations in the construction, field and 39 in production of stone, clay and glass products. These and the 24 listed previously were occupations which require six months or more of training.

Recommendations.
The farm leaders declared that the draft of manpower from farms was due to "refusal of this administration to deal effectively with industrial wages. . . . Surveys show that twice as many farm workers have been lured into industry by fabulous wages as have joined the armed forces."

Their statement recommended: That all branches of government recognize and treat agriculture as an essential war industry; that Selective Service instruct local boards to defer essential farm workers and operators until placements are found, as long as they remain in farm work; that farm price ceilings be adjusted to carry out the intent of the price control act of last month, providing allowance for increased costs and farm labor; that "all bureaucratic, unworkable regulations and controls," including fixing of minimum wages and regulating maximum hours and conditions of employment of farm workers, be eliminated.

Dr. Parran, head of the United States Public Health Service, estimated that 55,000 doctors could be spared from civilian practice to go to the armed forces, leaving enough to provide one for every 1,500 persons at home.

Navy Is Seeking More Officers For Intelligence

Interviews To Be Held in Atlanta Today at Healey Building.

Men possessing qualifications for naval intelligence officers will be interviewed here today by an officer from the Sixth Naval District Intelligence Office, who can be seen between 9 o'clock and 4 o'clock at the Office of Naval Officer Procurement on the seventh floor of the Healey building.

Applicants must be native-born United States citizens between the ages of 28 and 44. They must either have had previous investigative experience, extensive travel in foreign countries or extensive knowledge of foreign languages. A college background is also required.

In addition, applicants must be able to meet the physical requirements for naval officers and they must be able to satisfy an extensive investigation of their character and professional background.

Ruth Rohde, Former Envoy, Visits Atlanta

Defends Mrs. Roosevelt and Denies Reports of Separation.

Ruth Bryan Rohde, famous author, lecturer, former ambassador, and daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, was a visitor in Atlanta this week and found time, between lectures, to (1) defend Mrs. Roosevelt, (2) deny reports she and her husband are separating, (3) pose a delicate social problem, and (4) describe her "crazy-sounding" dress.

In order, she: Said Mrs. Roosevelt's critics used "extremely poor taste and bad judgment" and added, "Never have I seen a woman with more grace of heart than Mrs. Roosevelt."

Asserted she and her husband, the Danish Royal Guardsman who is now a major in the United States Army, are very happy and "never quarrel"—despite gossip reports in a newspaper column that they had reached the parting. Wondered what her married daughter, soon to be an ensign in the WAVES, will do about her Christmas cards. "What will she put on them 'Ensign and Mr. Walter Harris'?" she asked.

And, abandoned her stately statesmanship demeanor to flutter about the most exciting thing she says she has done in many a moon. "I bought the most arresting gown in New York," she declared. "The dress sounds crazy, but it's a knockout. It's purple with a vest of green sequins."

Mrs. Rohde, before she married Major Rohde, was congresswoman from Florida, and subsequently she was ambassador to Denmark for four years. She said she hears almost nothing from that country now, because "the news is few and far between," but she has heard that her husband's parents are well and safe.

She spoke at Fort Benning Monday, and is on her way to join her husband at Fort Totten, N. Y.

Navy Seeking College Men For Officers

Also Urgent Need for Technically Trained Persons, Robertson Says.

Immediate needs of the Navy Department for men to fill officer billets afloat and ashore, were outlined yesterday by Captain M. C. Robertson, director of Naval Officer Procurement for the Sixth Naval District.

"With new ships being launched daily, there is a critical need," Captain Robertson said, "for men, single or married, between the ages of 18 and 28 with college degrees to go through midshipman training which will lead to commissioning as officers. Main requirement in this class, known as the Navy's V-7 division, is that the applicant have a minimum of college mathematics."

Men in that class do not have to be technically trained, he said, pointing out that the Navy will send them to school for proper instruction. As long as they have the college education, with the proper mathematical requirements, they are eligible whatever their status in civilian life may be, he added.

There is also an urgent need for technically trained men such as meteorologists, men to teach aerial navigation and aerial recognition, men with field experience as construction engineers, electrical engineers, ministers to serve in the chaplain corps, college physics and chemistry professors, chemical engineers, men with experience in operating boats, and those trained in munitions or explosives," he said.

In the case of these technically trained men, the age limits are higher and the college requirements are not so rigid as those in Class V-7, he explained. In all the above mentioned classes, some college background is necessary. Full details may be obtained at the Office for Naval Officer Procurement, 721 Healey building, Atlanta, Ga.

OPA Is Ready For Signup of Oil Merchants

18,000 Fuel Dealers in State Will Register Monday, Tuesday.

Registration of some 18,000 fuel oil dealers in Georgia, including small storekeepers who sell kerosene, will be scheduled for next Monday and Tuesday in all except the Savannah area, which will register on Thursday and Friday of this week, the regional OPA office announced yesterday.

OPA fuel ration official, said the registrations would be held at local board headquarters throughout the state, except in Atlanta, where the city auditorium will be used Monday. After Monday, local dealers will sign up at the new offices of the Fulton County Rationing Board in the Lullwater building, 447 West Peachtree street, H. H. McPherson, executive secretary, said.

Dealers, upon registering and receiving their coupons, will be given blank forms for their customers to fill in and mail to the local ration boards to receive their oil coupons.

The established value of each ration coupon has been set at 10 gallons for Class 1 coupons and 100 gallons for Class 2 tickets. The coupons are issued for fuel oil rations for heat and hot water for private homes. The unit value of 10 gallons may be adjusted upwards or downwards by OPA, the announcement said.

11 Navyators Have 2 Things In Common

All Eager To Fight and List Brothers in Armed Services.

Eleven members of Atlanta's own "Axis Cracker" squadron of Navyators have two things in common—they all have one or two brothers in the armed services, and they all are brimming over with an ambition to slaughter a few dozen Japs and Germans each.

These 11 are among the 51 Atlanta Navyators who are to be given a farewell luncheon Armistice Day at the Atlanta Athletic Club by the civilian committee of the Naval Aviation Selection Board, which sponsored Naval Aviation week last August when the youngsters joined up to win their Navy wings of gold.

Anxious To Begin.
Captain Marion C. Robertson, director of the office of officer procurement for the sixth naval district, will tell the prospective aviators and civilian leaders about modern warfare at the luncheon meeting.

The 11 members of the squadron who met here recently for a get-together, are enthusiastic over becoming Naval aviators and all said they were anxious to begin training as quickly as possible. "I want to get over there and give those Japs hell as soon as possible," said Tyler R. Gresham, whose brother is Second Lieutenant Robert Gresham in the Army Air Corps on overseas duty. "And I'm going to shoot them down like doves on the wing," asserted T. W. Garrett, whose brother, Austin L. Garrett, is a gunner's mate with the merchant fleet.

Gloating Over Chance.
Each of the others expressed the same sentiment, with many of them gloating over the coming opportunity to drop bombs again on Tokyo.

There of the group included: J. B. McLendon, who has two brothers in the service, F. D. McLendon, a petty officer in the Coast Guard, and M. D. McLendon, who is an Army aviation cadet; Edwards Adams, whose brother is Captain Albert S. Adams, Army, stationed at Memphis; Donald Chase, whose brother, Richard, is a second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps; Walter Clapp, whose brother, Ensign T. M. Clapp Jr., is already in the Naval Reserve Air Corps.

Robert Burge, whose brother, J. T. Burge, is a staff sergeant with the Flying Dragons in China; W. D. Barron, who has a brother, C. E. Barron, serving as a first class seaman here and another J. P. Barron, who is in officers training school at Keiser Field, Miss.; B. J. Lunsford, whose brother, Malcolm, is a recruiting sergeant in Atlanta; Erwin Wall, who has a brother, Second Lieutenant J. B. Wall, in the armored forces, and another commissioned in the medical corps and now studying at Emory University, and Harold Walton, whose brother is a private stationed with the Army at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Jurist Delays Ruling on Huiet Quash Motion

Pleas of O'Connor and Stewart Denied by Underwood.

Overruling motions on behalf of J. E. B. Stewart and Marion A. O'Connor for a directed verdict of not guilty on conspiracy charges, Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood yesterday indicated that he would hear further argument this morning from government and defense attorneys before ruling on a similar motion in behalf of State Labor Commissioner Ben T. Huiet.

The motions were put on the grounds that sufficient evidence had not been introduced to warrant a verdict of guilty, following the reopening of the case to allow the government to introduce further documentary and verbal evidence regarding payment of salaries of Stewart and O'Connor, whom the government contends received at least part of their salary from federal funds.

The charge against the three is conspiracy to violate the federal corrupt practices act, which makes it illegal for persons receiving compensation from federal funds to solicit or receive funds for political purposes from others similarly paid. The indictment under which the case is being tried concerns an employee-raised fund for Huiet's re-election campaign in 1940, which Stewart has admitted he "engineered."

The government is expected to begin its summary of the facts in the case to the jury in today's session. Arguments probably will be concluded tomorrow.

OPA Allows Price Increase In Men's, Boys' Suits in South

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Prices of men's and boys' ready-made suits may go up in the south. The Office of Price Administration announced tonight it would permit price increases November 7 up to 10 per cent on such garments in the south, where March, 1942, ceilings did not reflect increases in costs to retailers.

The permitted price boost applies to suits, separate pants, vests and coats other than top coats, but does not include tropical weight garments. The freeze in retail prices at the March level resulted in hardship for retailers in areas where climatic conditions normally reduce the volume of March sales. While northern merchants were promoting spring suits last March, southern stores were selling summer garments.

For this reason, OPA said, March prices of southern retailers on regular weight suits generally were based on fall, 1941, costs. In other areas merchants had based their March prices on costs of new merchandise which had increased about 18 per cent over the fall, 1941, figures.

The order did not define in geographic terms the regions in which the new price formula could apply, but declared that sellers, in order to be eligible, must be located in a geographic area where, due to climatic conditions, the customary volume of March sales is "substantially lower than the average monthly volume of sales of these garments during October, November and December."

An OPA spokesman said this meant the price action would apply in southeastern states, southern California or any other region where this sales pattern was customarily established.

Allies Continue Guinea Advance, Now Nearing Oivi

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Wednesday, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Allied ground forces which captured Kokoda, advanced Jap base for the ill-fated mountain thrust at Port Moresby, are continuing to push the Japs back toward the north New Guinea coast, the Allied high command announced today.

The advance units now are approaching Oivi.

Dilli, harbor town on the north coast of Portuguese Timor, northwest of Australia, was attacked by two waves of Allied bombers which found fires still burning from the previous day's raid and started new ones in the town and wharf area.

The much-bombed Buin-Faisi area in the north Solomons, where concentrations of Japanese warships and merchant vessels have been dealt serious blows from the air, was visited by medium bombers last night and bombs were dropped on enemy shipping. Results were not observed.

Dewey Wins Governorship; Norris Trailing

in his re-election attempt. His opponent was E. H. Moore, independent oil man and anti-New Deal Democrat running on the Republican ticket.

Norris in Danger

George W. Norris, 81-year-old Independent senator from Nebraska, seemed in danger of tasting the bitter cup of political defeat in the twilight of his years. He was running second to Kenneth Wherry, midwest manager of the Republican, while Foster May, Democrat and former radio newscaster, was third.

From Iowa came tidings that Governor George A. Wilson, Republican aspirant to the United States senate, was ahead of Senator Clyde L. Herring, Democrat, Bourke B. Hickenlooper, Republican lieutenant governor trying to keep the governorship, and a two-to-one lead over Democratic Governor Nelson A. Kraschell on the basis of very incomplete figures.

In the Keystone state of Pennsylvania the Republican candidate for governor, State Auditor General E. W. Schnitzler, held a small lead over Governor Robert E. Pattison, a Democrat.

Cabot Trailing

A ding-dong struggle developed in Massachusetts, where Governor Leverett Saltonstall, Republican trying for re-election, held a small lead over Roger Lowell Putnam, descendant of Israel Putnam, of Revolutionary War fame.

On the basis of a heavy Democratic vote in Boston, handsome Representative Joseph E. Parnes, of the incumbent, Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., in the senatorial struggle.

The New York voting command had first attention—because of the 1944 presidential politics involved—in a day which found American citizens voting—in unusually small numbers—in 47 of the 48 states, electing the full membership of the house, a third of the senate and 32 governors. Not since 1918 had America held a war-time election.

House Returns Awaited

House returns were eagerly awaited, as possibly revealing the extent to which public opinion is supporting the Roosevelt war policies. A moderate swing to the Republicans was expected.

Otherwise, the day's hot contests found youthful Raymond S. McKee, Democrat, holding a narrow lead over Senator C. Wayne Brooks, in an Illinois race for the senate.

Most of the returns were from Chicago, a Democratic stronghold. Brooks was counting upon the slowly tabulated downstate vote to return him to the senate.

Spotty returns from Michigan showed Senator Prentiss M. Brown, Democrat and floor manager for the recently enacted anti-inflation bill, trailing in his struggle for re-election. Ahead was Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson, Republican, the one man in the jury who dealt such blows at corruption in the Detroit area.

Bricker Holds Lead

Ohio's voters gave Republican Governor John W. Bricker a growing margin over former Representative John McKelvey, seeking to shoulder Bricker away from the state's helm. Bricker men had been hoping he would make a good showing, thus increasing his stature as favorite son presidential timber in 1944.

Hamilton Fish, the Republican representative from New York, whom both President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie tried to retire to private life, had a slim margin over Ferdinand A. Hoyt, Democratic and American-Labor nominee.

Up in New Hampshire's granite hills, Senator Styles Bridges, Republican, took a re-election lead over Francis P. Murphy, long a Republican but now a Democrat.

O'Connor Pressed.

The free state of Maryland caught a bit of national interest when incomplete returns indicated Democratic Governor Herbert R. O'Connor had an unexpectedly small edge in Baltimore city over his Republican foe, Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin. O'Connor had figured to carry the normally Democratic metropolis by a wide margin.

At 10 p. m., eastern war time, it was still too early to say how the next congress would shape up. Of the 435 house seats, Democrats had clinched 18 and Republicans 11. However, many of the Democratic victories were in the south, where the primary ballot meant election.

Of the 33 senate seats at stake,

Clare Luce's Election Sure, Paper Says

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 3.—(AP)—The Bridgeport Telegram said at 11 o'clock tonight that the election of Playwright Clare Boothe Luce, Republican, to congress from Connecticut's fourth district was assured, though Representative Leroy Downe, Democrat was leading her by a few hundred votes at the time.

All towns still to be heard from were strongly Republican, the paper said.

In Bridgeport, the district's biggest city, Mrs. Luce polled 11,276 votes to 16,785 for Downe and 11,029 for David Mansell, Socialist.

Timoshenko Polls 6 Votes in Jersey

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Marshal Timoshenko, the Russian warrior, received six votes for sheriff of Hudson county today. The votes, cast in two districts, did not jeopardize the prospects of William J. McGovern, Democratic nominee for sheriff in this super-Democratic county, stronghold of Mayor Hague, of Jersey City.

LaGrange Oil Mill

Is To Crush Peanuts

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION

LAGRANGE, Ga., Nov. 3.—Preparations are under way at the local cotton oil mill for the extraction of oil from peanuts shortly after Christmas, when the season's cotton seed supply is exhausted.

Peanuts were grown in Troup county in quantity this year for the first time, as farmers attempted to co-operate with the nation's war effort, and officials pronounce the season's crop only fair as the grading is begun at the local mill as they are brought to market.

Democrats had definitely placed their men in seven and were leading in five other contests on which returns were available. Republicans, who captured a seat from Maine in September, were ahead in 11 of yesterday's contests.

Governorship Races.

Thirty-three governorships were up for filling this year. Democrats had captured four and were leading in three others. Republican candidates had one in the bag, and were ahead in the tussle for 13 others.

In Rhode Island, Senator Theodore Francis Green, Democrat, also on for re-election, trailed Ira Lloyd Letts, Republican. The Republican candidate for governor, James O. McManus led J. Howard McGrath, Democratic incumbent.

The first Kansas votes to be counted gave an edge to the veteran Republican Senator Arthur Capper, who didn't go home to campaign against his Democratic opponent, George McGill, former senator.

In Dixie, where the elections were mostly just a formality, scores of Democratic candidates for congress and governorships were pronounced elected early in the evening. Among them were Senators Glass, of Virginia; Ellender, of Louisiana; Eastland, of Mississippi; Russell, of Georgia; Bankhead, of Alabama.

Chandler Leads.

Senator A. B. Chandler, Democrat, Kentucky, held a substantial lead last night over his Republican opponent and on the basis of unofficial returns from today's election apparently had won a full six-year term.

With 748 of Kentucky's 4,339 precincts tabulated, Chandler had 42,282 votes to 31,299 for his opponent, Richard J. Colbert, of Lexington.

Chandler now is serving out the unexpired portion of the late Senator M. M. Logan's term.

In the Kentucky congressional races the only close contest appeared in the seventh district, where Chairman A. J. May, Democrat, of the House Military Affairs Committee, was trailing his Republican opponent, Dr. Elmer S. Gabbard.

Unofficial returns from 77 of the district's 362 precincts gave May 4,399 votes and Gabbard 5,184. May was opposed by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America union. The miners hold the balance of power in the seventh district.

Loomis Ahead.

Orland S. Loomis, Progressive who opposed Republican Governor Julius P. Heil's bid for a third term in the Wisconsin election, took a 500-vote lead.

In New Mexico, Senator Carl Hatch and Representative Clinton P. Anderson, Democratic incumbents, established substantial early leads last night in first scattered returns. Nine of 915 voting districts gave Hatch 1,255 to 446 for J. Benson Newell, Republican.

John J. Dempsey, Democrat, was leading Joseph F. Tondre, Republican, 1,917 to 949 from 20 voting districts in the governor's race.

Governor Ralph L. Carr, Republican, jumped ahead of United States Senator Ed C. Johnston, Democrat, in early Colorado election returns on their race for a six-year senate term. Color of 1,669 precincts gave Carr 432 and Johnston 214.

When placing your Want Ad in The Constitution inquire about the attractive rates.

DEWEY PADS MARGIN—Thomas E. Dewey, Republican candidate for Governor of New York, smiles confidently as returns give him a substantial margin over his opponent, John J. Bennett.

20-Year Tenure by Democrats Broken by Election of Dewey

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Republican Thomas E. Dewey's election to the governorship of New York tonight broke a 20-year Democratic party hold on the state's highest office.

Dewey's victory came on his second try for the gubernatorial seat. In 1938 he lost to Governor Herbert H. Lehman by a narrow margin.

Dewey, 40 years old, short, stocky and energetic as a tugboat, is accustomed to pushing successfully across his goal. Temporarily defeated in various ventures, he has bounced back, reassembled his forces and plunged ahead to win.

At the age of 31, Dewey took over as chief assistant United States attorney in New York city when his boss, George Z. Medall, resigned.

Attacking where the hardest were fearful, the youthful lawyer successfully prosecuted Beer Baron Waxe Gordon, who was sentenced on an income tax evasion conviction.

Following a brief retirement to private practice, Dewey returned to his blustering of the underworld when Governor Lehman appointed him special prosecutor in New York city vice investigations.

Dewey's energetic determination shattered a powerful web of racketeers and catapulted him into the national spotlight. He secured convictions of 72 of the 73 defendants whom he brought to trial.

He stamped out poultry, labor and bail bond rackets and paralyzed vice henchmen by convictions of such overlords as Charles "Lucky" Luciano and Dutch Schultz.

Elected district attorney in 1937, he prosecuted Louis "Lepke" Buchalter and also sent to prison Tammany Leader James J. Hines, Stock Exchange President Richard Whitney and Nazi Fritz Kuhn.

In the spring of 1940 he toured the nation, hopeful of nomination for the Republican presidential candidacy that ultimately went to Wendell Willkie.

Dewey came from Owosso, Mich., to the law school of Columbia University after his graduation from the University of Michigan. When he first arrived in the big city, he was undecided whether to become a lawyer or to pursue a singing career.

Women Exert Major Role at Nation's Polls

Big Vote Attributed to Entry of Men Into Armed Forces.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Women, of both the petticoat and slacks variety, put up fewer candidates but cut a much bigger figure in the outcome of today's congressional and state elections than in any nation-wide balloting for years.

There were but 68 women candidates in the national and state picture as compared with 92 in 1938 and 83 in 1940. But at the Democratic and Republican national headquarters it was reported that women exerted a greater influence in 1942 than at any time since they obtained the vote in 1920.

The political experts put the feminine vote percentage at from 50 to 62. This estimate was attributed to the number of men drawn into armed forces, because the percentage of absentee ballots cast by men in uniform was small. Also political workers concentrated on getting out the woman's vote.

The dean of the petticoat lawmakers, Mrs. Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, a Democrat, who has served since 1925, sought another term, as did two other house members: Mrs. Frances Bolton, Republican, Ohio, and Miss Jessie Sumner, Republican, Illinois.

seemed satisfied to leave it to their neighbors.

Gas and tire rationing and lack of interest in the general election were given as reasons for the light balloting.

Fulton county had more than 48,000 qualified to vote, but election officials said the number who voted probably would not exceed six or seven thousand at the most, 2,500 in DeKalb.

In DeKalb county, where some 12,000 were qualified, it was estimated no more than 2,500 cast ballots.

"In the courthouse box in Decatur, where 2,500 or more vote in the primaries, only 400 or 450 have voted thus far," a Decatur man reported late in the afternoon.

What the outcome of the election will officially be is to be decided today, when poll workers return their official counts to the ordinaries, who conduct general elections.

Claude C. Mason, chief deputy of the Fulton ordinary's office, said Fulton's vote will be tabulated this morning.

Most of the Democratic party nominees were unopposed in the general election, but Henry A. Alexander, Atlanta lawyer, ran against incumbent Congressman Ramspeck. There were two independents running against Ellis Arnall for governor. A woman also made the race against Senator Russell.

Frank Hooper Jr. was named on the local ballots for judge to succeed the late Judge John D. Humphries, whose place on the superior court bench is now occupied by Bond Almand.

A court fight to decide whether Almand or Hooper will begin the new judgeship term in January, 1943, probably will ensue, since each is claiming it.

Dublin Soldier Dies

In South Pacific Area

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION

DUBLIN, Ga., Nov. 3.—Mrs. Susie Green Dixon, of Dublin, Route 1, has been informed that her son, Walter B. Dixon, died October 27 in the South Pacific area of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Dixon, a technician fourth class in the United States Army, had been serving on foreign duty about seven months.

The notification came in a telegram to Mrs. Dixon from the War Department.

'Praise God' Phrase of 1861-65 Recalled by Lee's Biographer

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 3.—(AP) Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, Pulitzer prize winner with his biography, "Robert E. Lee," and author of the recent work, "Lee's Lieutenant," recalled today a popular phrase of the War Between the States similar to one currently going the rounds.

In an editorial captioned, "War Stories Are Repeated," Dr. Freeman, editor of the Richmond News Leader, noted that the words, "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition," denied by the Rev. William A. Maguire, Catholic naval chaplain, now were attributed to Chaplain Howell Forgy, who admits them.

A suggestion that the phrase was not original with Lieutenant Forgy, but was used first in the War Between the States doubtless refers to a story printed by

By The Associated Press.

The Democratic south, with its party choices settled, ratified yesterday's general election the outcome of earlier primary battles.

Chief aspect of the balloting, light in comparison to primary voting, was the addition of three new members to the Democratic side of the house of representatives. Their seats were created by the 1940 reapportionment of congressional districts which gave North Carolina, Tennessee and Florida each another representative.

Representative R. A. (Lex) Green, who formerly represented the second Florida district, goes in as representative-at-large without opposition. His old second district seat was won in the primary by Emory H. Price, who also was unopposed.

Morrison Nominated.

Cameron Morrison, millionaire former United States senator and ex-Governor, won the Democratic nomination for North Carolina's new 10th district (Charlotte), and was opposed by Republican Charles A. Jonas, who served one term in the house when the Tarheel state voted for Hoover in 1928.

J. N. McCord obtained the Democratic nomination for Tennessee's new fifth district and had no opposition.

At Tampa, Fla., voting was so light in one precinct that four poll officials whiled the time away in a bridge game.

In Kentucky, Representative Andrew J. May, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, was opposed by Dr. Elmer E. Gabbard, a Republican and college president.

Ramspeck Confident.

House Whip Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia's fifth district, was unopposed by the opposition of independent H. A. Alexander.

Incumbent Democratic senators, certain of the formality of election, did little campaigning.

In Alabama, Senator John H. Bankhead was unopposed. John L. McClellan won the party nomination in Arkansas and likewise had no opposition. Senator Russell, of Georgia, was opposed by Mrs.

$5,500,000,000 SPENT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Uncle Sam paid nearly $5,500,000,000 directly into the all-out war effort for the second straight month during October, making the fourth month total since July 1 approximately $20,250,000,000, the Treasury Department reported today.

The Richmond Dispatch July 18, 1861, Dr. Freeman said.

"The reporter (with the troops on the Potomac) for the Dispatch was describing a brush at Falling Waters on the second of July, 1861, where the Rockbridge artillery went into action under Captain (later general) W. N. Pendleton. He was at the time of his commission Episcopal rector at Lexington, but he was an old West Pointer.

"At Falling Waters—so ran the story—he had the gun loaded and aimed it himself. Then he had raised his hand in prayer—'May the Lord have mercy on their poor souls—fire!' Subsequently, in the repetition of this story, the scene was changed to Manassas and the remark became: 'Give 'em hell, boys—and may God have mercy on their souls.'"

Vet Aviator Named Area CAA Manager

W. M. Robertson to Succeed George Vest, Called to Active Duty.

William M. Robertson, a World War I aviator and a Civil Aeronautics Administration official for 14 years, yesterday was named regional manager of the CAA for the southeast to succeed George W. Vest, who has been called to active service in the Army.

For the last year Robertson has been superintendent of safety regulations for the CAA. The second region, which he will head, comprises the states of Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and the eastern portion of Louisiana.

Robertson has been actively engaged in aviation since the last war when he learned to fly as an aviation cadet at Southern Military Academy, Ga., where he was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1918. He was an active pilot in the Reserve and National Guard until his transfer to Atlanta in 1939 and has continued to fly.

He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce aviation committee and of the Atlanta Athletic Club.

4 Escaped Nazis Caught by Posse

RUIDOSO, N. M., Nov. 3.—(AP)—A mounted, gun-toting posse of ranchers and cattlemen rounded up and cornered four escaped German prisoners from the federal internment camp at Fort Stanton today.

One prisoner was wounded slightly in a brief exchange of gunfire as the posse surprised the sleeping Germans on a hillside about 14 miles from Fort Stanton.

The Germans, seamen from the scuttled liner Columbus, were interned after the outbreak of the European war in 1939. They escaped Sunday night.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief
Many sufferers relate aching backaches quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 2 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause aching backaches, rheumatism, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Get your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

He was heading his own admonition to the American people to defend the institutions of democracy with ballots as well as bullets.

Driving into town from his country estate beside the Hudson, Mr. Roosevelt became voter No. 175 in Hyde Park's third election district.

Comes Alone. He came alone, for Mrs. Roosevelt was in London, his four sons were scattered over the world with other fighting men, and his only daughter now lives in Seattle.

At the white-frame town hall, just off the main street of the village, the President dropped in immediately into a familiar routine.

"This seems natural," he said. "With a straight face, J. W. Finch, chairman of the election board, peered up over his spectacles and asked:

"Name, please?"

Also straight of face, but with a twinkle in his eye, the man who devotes all but a fragment of his time to the direction of a mighty war effort gave his answer:

Same for 40 Years. "Franklin D. Roosevelt, farmer. I think that's what I said last time."

He had been saying it for nearly 40 years, at the same place. Finch ran a finger down an enrollment book and showed Mr. Roosevelt where to sign.

"Not so big a vote today," the President remarked when he learned that only 174 of his neighbors had preceded him into the voting booth.

"No, a little slow so far," Finch responded.

"The district has a registration of 803."

Mr. Roosevelt spent only a minute operating the voting machine behind the green curtains of the booth. How he voted, he did not disclose.

Votes for Bennett. It appeared to be a safe assumption, though, that he balloted for John J. Bennett Jr., the Democratic candidate for governor of New York, although the chief executive had wanted the nomination to go to Senator James M. Mead. Twice he had avowed that he was supporting Bennett against Republican Thomas E. Dewey.

And it seemed equally certain, in view of his past performances and utterances, that he voted for Ferdinand A. Hoyt, Democratic and American Labor party candidate for congress, instead of Hamilton Fish, the Republican who has represented the President's district for 22 years.

After brushing his head against the drawings for the voting booth curtains, the President grinned and told the election board that "you might raise the height of these booths."

Chats With Children. He asked the election board whether "my missus" ballot got in "in time from London" and learned that it had not arrived. She missed getting in in Washington by just 24 hours, he remarked, so he had sent it to her promptly by plane.

Even if it had arrived in time, it would not have been counted, because election officials had ruled the first lady could not vote from outside the United States.

On the way into town, the chief executive stopped to talk for a moment with nearly 150 shrieking children from Hyde Park elementary school and smiled while they shoved and jostled their way up to and onto his limousine.

One little girl got a word of appreciation when she exclaimed: "I hope you have a nice election."

Lumber Industry Active in Hancock

SPARTA, Ga., Nov. 3.—(AP)—The lumber industry in Hancock county is still the principal industry and affords a large pay roll each week to number of laborers and skilled workers, both white and colored. Since most of the lumber is shipped for defense work being done by the government, dealers have a market for all that can be manufactured and much more besides.

The mill owners still have considerable standing timber and much lumber on the yards, which will keep the mills running indefinitely, it is said.

Betty Hutton To Wed Westmore—After War

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Betty Hutton, whose piercing voice and agile feet grace Paramount musical spectacles, said today she was engaged to be married—after the war.

The groom-to-be is Perc Westmore, one of the Westmore movie makeup brothers. Westmore, confined to a hospital with influenza, plans to join the Army Air Forces, and the marriage will be postponed until the war is over. Miss Hutton explained. It will be her first and Westmore's fourth trip to the altar.

Soong Sees Axis Defeat 'In Not Distant Future'

CHUNGKING, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Foreign Minister T. V. Soong said today at his first press conference since arriving from Washington that he had left the United States with "a full and complete assurance of victory in the not distant future."

He said he had come back to China with the impression that "the greatest difficulties are over—the worst has passed. I left with a feeling of restrained optimism."

the booths and mark them and deposit them in the locked box.

"Gee," breathed a freckle-faced fifth grader in profound admiration at the power of the ballot, "is that all it took to elect Mr. Ar-nall governor?"

At Clark Howell school on Tenth street one class found a star for the drama of democracy in Voter John Ashley Jones, who obligingly went through his paces with explanatory remarks to the class and then entertained them with a little talk on the differences in their opportunities and those afforded school children in his day "back when there were only four schools in the city of Atlanta."

Among the schools which held conducted tours to the polling places, situated there just before the last primary election, were Annie E. West, Williams Street, Lee Street, Clark Howell, Home Park, Spring Street, Ella W. Smilie and Highland.

At Moreland school the children were allowed to observe balloting during the primary and to return the favor yesterday they invited the election officials to visit them in their classrooms during the long lulls between voters.

serve. C. J. Hicks, superintendent of Rockdale county schools, served in place of Barron.

Readers Hard at It. Since September 28, according to the expense accounts, the readers have been hard at it. They were divided into five groups, each assigned to special subjects with which he was supposed to be familiar.

Five rooms in the State Office building have been set aside, one for each group, and the tables and desks and the floors in each room were piled high with the offerings of the publishers. One company has more than 1,000 books on its lists and there are more than a dozen companies.

With salesmen hovering in the background, one group has been reading books with such titles as "Our Pets," "Munching Peter and Other Stories," "Polly the Kid," "To School and Home Again," "Fun With Dick and Jane," "Fun for You," and "Anything Can Happen." The books ranged from kindergarten through high school subjects.

Mass Purchase Opposed. Today's battle at the Board of Education session will center around any effort at mass purchases before the Talmadge administration leaves office.

Dr. M. D. Collins, superintendent of the board, is opposing mass purchase.

"Experience has taught us," he said, "that the state loses when it loads up with thousands of volumes of any given book. The book salesmen then move out through the state and sell the county superintendents on other books in their stock. Then, we are forced to hire salesmen and send them out into the counties to try to sell the books we have piled up in stock. I am opposed to any mass purchases and will urge the board to consider the evils of this plan."

Job of Readers. The professional readers are school teachers and school superintendents. Their job is to skim through a book and see that nothing in it opposes Georgia viewpoints.

For instance, it was reported yesterday: "If a reader finds a book where some lyricist of the old world mentioned the business of calling the cattle home across the sands of Dee. Now, everyone in Georgia knows that a Cracker cow is never called home. In fact, by legislative enactment, he has the right to sleep all night on those nice, soft four-inch concrete highways. A Georgia cow ignores the blast of an automobile horn, let alone harking to a call. Those old world rhymes might give a child the wrong impression about cattle."

Advice of Salesmen. The salesmen, it is said, accost the readers in odd hours and advise them: "Now, that number about 'Visiting Gramma on the Farm.' That's a hot number, chum. It's a lulu. Show it to a kid and he can't miss. It sorta does something to a kid—brings out the finest, you know. If that book's not adopted, humanity will suffer. It's really a dream book."

Whatever the result, the state will know today.

The budget shows provisions for $299,125.68 to be spent for books this quarter. The usual annual expenditure is about $800,000, and the book salesmen will be lined up outside the board room today, as were the customers at last Saturday's Georgia-Alabama game.

Malta's October Raids Held 'Test of Strength'

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The Air Ministry described the mid-October air battle over Malta today as a "deliberate test of strength" by the Axis and said that the enemy, with 138 planes shot down, had suffered such a disaster he had to call quits after 10 days.

Besides 131 planes shot down by fighters defending the Mediterranean Island stronghold, the Air Ministry said, seven others fell to antiaircraft guns and many more probably were destroyed.

It compared "infinitesimal" damage to Malta in the raids with the enemy's "staggering" losses.

Russians Check Nazis in Caucasus, Gain at Stalingrad

By HENRY C. CASSIDY.

MOSCOW, Wednesday, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The Red army checked the great German drive in the central Caucasus Tuesday, the Soviet midnight communique indicated today, and made slight advances on several other fronts, including Stalingrad, where large-scale fighting flared up again.

For the first time in several days the communique made no mention of any German gains on the Nalchik plains at the foot of the 18,000-foot Caucasus mountains where the Germans are driving toward the historic Georgian military highway.

It merely said: "Southeast of Nalchik, Soviet troops fought fierce defensive battles."

Attack Is Intense. There was no decrease in the intensity of the German attack, however. The communique said "large tank forces" and aircraft continued to support the infantry and that 14 tanks and 17 planes were destroyed during the day.

In Stalingrad, after a brief lull, the Germans threw two infantry divisions and 40 tanks into a series of fierce counterattacks which in several places developed into hand-to-hand fighting. In some sectors the Germans launched as many as five large scale attacks, the communique said, but each time they were driven back with tremendous losses.

In the factory district of northern Stalingrad, the Russians occupied several strongholds after repulsing five German attacks, the communique said, adding that about 2,000 Germans were killed inside Stalingrad during the day's fighting.

Earlier Reports. Earlier reports said the enemy had been driven from several buildings in a factory area, and on the southern outskirts of the city Russian counter-blows wiped out fortified points and blockhouses and annihilated a German battalion.

Northwest of Stalingrad, the communique said, Russian troops attacked and occupied some German fortified positions after Soviet artillery had knocked out seven blockhouses. About 160 Germans were said to have been killed in hand-to-hand fighting.

On the Black sea front, northeast of the Port of Tuapse, Russian forces also maintained the initiative. The communique said Soviet units encircled an enemy infantry battalion near a village and was engaged in wiping it out.

But the main battle continued to be in the central Caucasus where the Germans hope to gain control of the Georgian highway, artery through Europe's highest mountain barrier.

Nazi Claims. (The German high command said that the Caucasus fighting had reached east of Alagir, which the Nazis claim they have captured, and that the attackers had penetrated "strongly fortified and mined positions of the enemy." Alagir is about 45 miles by road west of Ordzhonikidze, where the Georgian military road begins. In Stalingrad, the Germans said, the Russians lost further ground and their "repeated counterattacks failed.")

Soviet dispatches said that the enemy, using perhaps 50,000 German armored troops and Rumanian mountain infantry, and even about 1,500 and fighting sailors, had occupied "another village" east of Nalchik, which the Soviets have evacuated, then had broken through one road and were attempting to approach another highway.

Their major objective, of course, was Ordzhonikidze and the Georgian highway. Nalchik, now behind the German lines, is about 60 air miles from Ordzhonikidze, but actually close to 100 miles by the winding mountain roads.

The noon communique was less specific, but it said that in three attacks, the Germans "succeeded in pressing back our troops somewhat." In another sector, however, Russian troops were said to have cut off the enemy infantry from their tanks, disposing of 30 of the panzers.

Scene of Operations. Two German tank divisions and two Rumanian Alpine divisions are included in the enemy force southeast of Nalchik. They are operating across rich fields, low mountains and swift rivers of the Kabadino-Balkaria autonomous republic.

Ordzhonikidze, formerly Vladikavkaz, lies at the southeast corner of this great plain, near Mount Il, and on the river Terek, a few miles from the Darial gorge. The autumn weather there is usually good.

It was founded in 1784 as a

Nazis Review 500 Days of Soviet War

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The German radio, apparently with the idea of minimizing the failure to capture Stalingrad and to attain the major objective of destruction of the Red army, broadcast today a 1,300-word summary of the war in Russia to recall German victories of the past.

The basis given for the detailed listing of Nazi gains was that today is the 500th day of the struggle on the east front.

"Five hundred days of war," the broadcast said in summary, "have cost the enemy 14,000,000 in dead, seriously wounded and prisoners."

It did not say whether this included civilian casualties or the homeless rounded up in captured areas. Neither did the Germans mention their own losses.

fortress against the mountain peoples and its old name meant, "to control the Caucasus."

Tiflis lies about 100 miles to the south, over the Georgian road which ascends to a height of 16,000 feet.

On the other Caucasus front, northeast of Tuapse near the Black sea, the Russians continued to report recovery of positions from the enemy and the occupation of heights.

WAR ACE SHAKEN UP. LONDON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Pilot Officer George Beurling, Canadian ace in the defense of Malta, suffered only a cut hand and a bad shaking up instead of a broken leg in the crash of a large plane at Gibraltar, it was disclosed today. An Ottawa, Ontario, report yesterday said Beurling had suffered a fracture of the right leg in the crash.

Civilian Pilot Training Here Is Progressing

Activities Inspected by National Special Aviation Officials.

Civilian pilot training activities in Atlanta are progressing favorably, members of the Civil Aeronautics Administration reported yesterday following an inspection by William A. Burden, special aviation assistant to the Secretary of Commerce, and R. M. Stewart, special assistant to the Administrator of Civil Aeronautics.

The two officials flew into Atlanta Monday and spent the day inspecting the ground school at Georgia Tech and the flight operations at Southern Airways and Airway Sales and Manufacturing Company at the airport. They also visited the airways communication training center, the weather school and the air traffic control training school at the airport.

Our Sacred Cause

That this war in which we are engaged may truly be classified as a religious war was made clear in the address delivered Sunday by Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, archbishop of Philadelphia.

Of the men of the American fighting forces, Archbishop Dougherty said they were "risking their lives in the sacred cause of religion and civilization," and he further said we are all resolved to meet, "with God's help, every danger; to overcome every obstacle and to vanquish every foe."

The Catholic prelate in those words but added his voice to those of hundreds of other high churchmen, Protestant, Catholic and Jew, who have felt impelled to emphasize the religious stake involved in this world conflict. There is scarcely a thinking cleric who does not realize that the battle now formed against the Axis foes is, at least, a battle for survival of the Christian religion as it exists today. Only the ignorant, the ill-informed, can believe otherwise.

Germany, under Hitler, has renounced the Christ that Christians the world over know and love. In his place Hitler and his satellites would set up a pagan god, fashioned to suit their needs, a god of cruelty, of oppression, of viciousness. The most cursory reading of "Mein Kampf," of the Hitler speeches and of the outpourings of other leading Nazis makes this clear.

As for Japan, the Oriental partner in the Axis, she would, if victorious, wipe out the God of the Christians and impose upon the whole world the dominance of the Shinto gods, the worship of the human emperor, Japanese victory would mean the end of our civilization, including our religion.

As for Italy, it need not be counted. That wretched country is but a captive victim of war, cruelly bound to the chariot wheels of the master, Hitler, to whom Mussolini has betrayed his people. The Italian people are true to their Christian faith, but they are helpless slaves, already, of the pagans who would conquer the world.

It may seem passing strange that Russia is fighting so gloriously on the side of Christianity. It must be remembered, however, that many of our previously held opinions of the Soviet republics were the result of demagogic propaganda spread for selfish purposes by our own unscrupulous politicians; also that the fiery furnace of war has worked, and is working, a revolution in Russian hearts and minds today, that many millions in that country are turning once again to the ancient faith.

Even though all who fight with us, in the ranks of the Allied Nations, cannot conform to the high idealism of Christians, they still are serving the same cause of religion and civilization. Once more, man recognizes the ancient wisdom that "God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform."

We have but to put our trust in Him, give our all, if need be, for the cause and we shall not only be victorious in battle, but triumphant in the formation of a new, a finer, a more spiritual world to come.

"Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition!"

earmark them as not available for combat duty until 1944? It is exactly as Waring outlined it: It would necessitate the setting up in the Army of many divisions whose enlisted personnel would be made up entirely of men in the 'teen-age group, and this assuredly is not sound military policy.

Further, the Legion head pointed out this important fact: To have so-called elite divisions comprised solely of very young men might have a disastrous effect in battle. It would mean greater casualties, due to the lack of older men standing alongside, as Waring put it, "to furnish the steadiness, stability and experience of battle." Waring is right. The amendment doesn't make sense.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

TOO MUCH CRITICISM WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Too much criticism is being directed at the War and Navy Departments for their failure to take the public more into their confidence in releasing news concerning the war.

The complaint is heard often that both departments have been guilty of unnecessary delays in announcing bad news. Accusations have been made that officials have a policy of deliberately suppressing unpleasant information until some new development occurs to take the edge off.

Critics of the present procedure have made much of the claim that the American public is able to take the bad news with the good, as if the suppression were ordered because of some doubt on this score. Without regard to the military considerations involved, many of those who have been the loudest in their criticism would evidently have the armed services reveal everything as soon as it happens.

Thus, after Pearl Harbor the Navy bore the brunt of an attack in and out of congress for its refusal to make known all the gruesome details when, to do so, would have been to play directly into Japanese hands. If the Japs had known the extent of damage they caused there would have been an invitation for them to return in force in an effort to complete the job. They might have made raids on our west coast cities, or even launched an attack on the Panama Canal.

Perhaps both departments have leaned too far backwards at times in withholding information, but if they have erred at all it has been on the side of caution. Better to tell too little than too much.

WHAT ENEMY KNOWS The enemy knows he has sunk one of our ships when it goes down before his eyes, but he does not always know the extent of damage caused by the enemy's bomb. The sinking of one of the three carriers we have lost was witnessed by the Japs. Hence we did not announce the disaster until we had time to replace them in the same waters by other vessels. In each case about a month elapsed between the time of the actual sinking and the official communique telling of the loss.

An effort has been made by some critics to draw an unfavorable parallel between our practice of delayed announcements and the promptness with which the British certified the loss of the Prince of Wales and the Repulse, for example. The difference there was that the two British warships went down in plain view of the attacking Japs, so nothing was to be gained by silence. The same was true of the Hood, which went down in the battle with the Bismarck, whose officers were fully aware of the sinking and immediately radioed the important news to Berlin. But later when the British lost one of their first-line battleships in the Mediterranean the information was held up a month for the good reason that the enemy submarine responsible for the sinking was itself destroyed and did not have an opportunity to report its good fortune.

CAN DO NO HARM Our communiquees are framed with the idea that it is vastly more important to keep information away from the enemy than it is to satisfy public curiosity over the progress of war events. No one who is not in possession of all the facts can safely challenge the policy. It can certainly do no harm. It might do us untold injury otherwise.

There is nothing to justify the claims of the critics that national morale is affected by the failure of the War and Navy Departments to take the public more into their confidence. The public is naturally eager for all the war news possible. It will continue to be our main preoccupation until final victory is won. But there is positively no evidence that the public is fretting under the policy.

A few cases have arisen where it seemed possible for both departments to make a revelation without working injury to the war cause. The Doolittle raid on Tokyo is one. We were given to believe from the official statement that none of our pilots participating in that raid had been captured by the Japs. Later it developed that four or five of them were taken. If we knew the situation all the while the information might as well have been released, as the Japs were bound to announce it themselves sooner or later.

NOT CAUGHT IN JAPAN But even here there is probably a good reason why the departments chose to put out a veiled communique. The Doolittle pilots were not captured in Japan, but either in China or on the China sea where they may have been forced down because of exhausted fuel. So long as there was a possibility the Japs did not know they had taken part in the Tokyo raid there was no reason for us to tell them.

Most of the criticism has been directed against the Navy, but the Army has had to stand its share of it. Just now a lot of curiosity about American troop movements in Liberia, Africa. A story slipped through the British censorship some days ago of a large contingent of United States soldiers landing there. It all has the most interesting implications in connection with the current drive launched against Rome in Egypt.

But the War Department has failed to make any mention of the subject whatsoever, though we have the reasonable certainty that the Germans are informed on the situation.

Perhaps the department has excellent reasons for handling the matter in this way. In any event, it doesn't seem proper for critics to be condemning until they know what they are talking about.

Are You A Chiseler?

A friend of mine invited me into his office yesterday morning, when it happened business had taken me into the outer precincts of the establishment over which he rules, in a business way.

He had something on his mind, and it was worrying him. He had been thinking, for days, about a class of people he had found right in Atlanta, Fulton, DeKalb and Decatur who were, he pointed out, throwing small or large monkey wrenches into the machinery of America's war effort.

"The darn chiselers," he called them.

I pointed out that these creatures of little or no character we had with us always. In peace times their selfishness had not mattered much, but I conceded in time of war it is a serious thing. I likewise pointed out that in this column and in editorials I had frequently spoken of said chiselers in noncomplimentary terms. Very noncomplimentary, in fact. And added I intended to keep on writing about 'em, in the hope that a few might suffer the qualms of uneasy conscience at least. That is, if they have any conscience.

So, with the words of my friend fresh in memory, once again let us devote a morning column to a disagreeable subject—the chiselers.

Unnecessary Driving. The incident which has aroused this friend's ire was a conversation he had heard between three young men which wished to make an automobile trip to another city. Circumstances for the trip were purely pleasure, there was no real reason why they should go other than for their own amusement.

One of them, discussing the projecting jaunt, asked how about the supply of gasoline. Another responded:

"Oh, we can get all we want. I talked the ration board into giving me an 'A' and a 'C' ration book, when really I didn't need anything but the 'A' for ordinary driving."

Here are our own boys and men, former neighbors, relatives, friends and companions in work and recreation, fighting and dying all around the world, to preserve the very fundamentals of decent life and decent hope, to preserve them for all of us. To save us from abject slavery under the Axis heel.

And the chiselers scheme and work, too often successful, to put a selfish trick over on ration boards which do the best humanly possible, but can't be omnipotent. They try to get a few extra pounds of sugar, to hoard, although they know it means some-

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Again On Eleanor NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—This undoubtedly will be another of those vicious diatribes against a great and gracious lady, because it has come to be vicious to disagree with one of the most active politicians of the New Deal party and any dissent from any expression or purpose of Mrs. Roosevelt is a diatribe.

Our subject is Mrs. Roosevelt's own law, enacted by fiat, against the will of the legislative body established by the constitution, providing a top limit of $25,000 on salaries for personal services. The United Auto Workers of the CIO first proposed this limit, Mrs. Roosevelt took it up, the President then twice recommended it to congress and congress positively refused to comply.

The merits of the order which gave the force of law to Mrs. Roosevelt's whim, contrary to the expressed intent of congress, and the confusion and the gross inequities which it has created, notwithstanding its expressed purpose to correct gross inequities, cannot be fully discussed in this essay.

Effect On Roosevelt My topic is the effect of this law on President and Mrs. Roosevelt themselves.

It is said that the President willingly complies with the fiat as to his own salary of $75,000 a year. However, the terms of his employment as a public officer are such that he receives the use of a large house and a staff of servants, heat, light and maintenance. A private citizen, employed by a private enterprise, who received all these extras would be required to list their cost, reckoned on a reasonable basis, as additional compensation from his employer, and would have to pay income tax on that further amount.

Mrs. Roosevelt herself has an income which is large and may be, these days, one of the greatest individual incomes in the United States. It is derived from her writings and her lectures. For the conduct of these profitable private commercial activities she is provided with an office in the White House at public expense, although none of these activities are officially in the public service or the public interest. Her royalties from her syndicated newspaper writing are not salary and thus are not subject to the limitation, although they may far exceed that limit of $25,000 a year. Her payment for magazine articles, if she sells them by the piece, is not salary, and if she delivers 100 lectures a year for 100 different organizations, each $1,000 a lecture, that income of $100,000 would not be subject to the $25,000 limit, either. The order forbids any one employer to pay more than $25,000 a year to any one employee, and thus is a certain complicated proviso, but it is doubtful that a sponsoring organization which engages a lecturer to make a talk for $1,000 is to be regarded as an employer at all.

$1,089,872 Last April 23 the Associated Press reported that Mrs. Roosevelt's estate was valued at $1,089,872 and said that "under a will probated earlier President Roosevelt receives nine-tenths of the entire estate and his mother's Hyde Park property."

This estate is invested largely in good stocks, and if 3 per cent is not too large a figure to hit upon as a yield, the income to the President from his nine-tenths would be about $30,000 a year, in addition to his limited official pay of $75,000. Of course, that income would be subject to the income taxes of both the federal government and the state of New York,

VICHY BOMBS EXPLODE.

WISE ATLANTA SHOPPERS know that—this year—Christmas shopping early means Christmas shopping NOW! Better service—better choice of merchandise—speedier deliveries—more comfortable transportation to town and back—these are the obvious reasons why the holiday shopping spirit already prevails in Atlanta's stores.

Let's keep it rolling—because it's patriotic, too.

Uncle Sam is a mighty busy man—the railroads and the highways are filled with martial traffic—our post office will soon be swamped as never before with packages bound for our boys in camp. No matter how vividly we feel the spirit of Christmas, our emotions must give way to the bigger cause of Victory.

All of us are doing our share—and by shopping NOW, we can do just a little, but a very important little, more!

Sawmiller, in Jail Here, Denies He Burned Wife, Five Children

Kissed Mate Good-by Day of Death, Pulliam Says.

By KEELER McCARTNEY.
Sitting in a dimly lighted cell at Fulton Tower and staring straight ahead, Mark Pulliam, 34-year-old sawmill logger, protested last night, "I don't know what they mean," to charges that he killed his wife near Chatsworth Monday and then burned her body, along with five children.

Pulliam was arrested by Sheriff J. W. Morrison at Chatsworth and formally charged with murder in connection with the deaths. Sheriff Morrison said Mrs. Pulliam apparently met violent death before an attempt was made to destroy her body and the bodies of five of her children.

Following his arrest, Pulliam was removed to Fulton Tower for safekeeping.

Describes Parting.
"The last I saw of my wife was at 3 o'clock Monday morning when I left to go to work," Pulliam declared. "I worked at a sawmill at Rocky Face, which is about 35 miles from where we lived."

"I had been staying with a sister in Dalton, because that was only about seven miles from where I worked."

"My wife got up before I did Monday morning and had breakfast ready. One of our three-year-old twin boys woke up and came into the kitchen."

"I carried him back and tucked him in bed before I left."

"The moon was awfully bright. My wife remarked as I started out the door, 'It's awful cold out there, isn't it?' I told her I guessed it was, then I kissed her and left."

5 Children Died.
The children who died with their mother were Wayne and Worth, three-year-old twin boys; Katherine, 10-year-old girl; Martha, 8 and Arlene, 11.

Mark Jr., 17, worked at the mill with his father and was away from home Monday, and two girls, Mabelle, 13, and the girl, Laval, 6, were visiting their grandmother at Dew's Pond.

The tall, gaunt logger said he and his wife "got along as well as any other couple, and never had any serious quarrels."

"I came home two or three times a week until I wrecked my car a few days ago," he explained. "Somebody came to my home Sunday while I was away for a few minutes and told my wife the sheriff had a warrant for my arrest about an auto accident."

"When the sheriff arrested me Monday afternoon I thought that was what he wanted."

Denies Killing Woman.
Pulliam hesitated and then said he did not know Della Mae Hall, a former resident of Chatsworth, now employed at Dalton, who has been arrested on a warrant charging her with being an accessory in the slayings.

In Dalton, Deputy Sheriff Tom Crow quoted the woman as saying she was with Pulliam in Chatsworth, 40 miles to the north, over the weekend, but had not seen him since Sunday night.

In a letter to his father, written from his jail cell, Pulliam said: "I am getting along all right. So far I don't understand the way they do me. I want you to go to Chatsworth and see Colonel Sted and let me know. I want to let my boys and my house and my wife. Don't take less than $4 for the boys and let the big rubber-wheeled wagon if they give you $5 for it."

"If you come, bring Junior. I want you to get my children away from there because somebody will steal them. I want you to keep the milk cow."

Sheriff Morrison said investigations had revealed deep knife wounds in the torso of the woman's body, found in the smoking ruins of the Pulliam home.

Morrison said that Mark Pulliam Jr., the oldest son, testified that his father had threatened the family in the past.

Hemispheric Group Bares Nazi Spy Ring

Bowers' Protest to Chile Unanswered, Latin Chiefs Reveal.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The Inter-American Committee for the Political Defense of the Hemisphere voted today to publish a lengthy U. S. memorandum specifically charging that a Nazi spy ring functioning in Chile had sent detailed military information to Germany and among other things had tried to bribe a diplomat of one American nation to secure information on the Panama Canal.

By a 5-to-1 vote the committee decided to disclose the memorandum, which was presented by U. S. Ambassador Claude G. Bowers to the Chilean government last June, and which it is understood never has been formally answered by the Santiago government.

Furor Recalled.
The memorandum formed the basis of Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles' recent speech which caused protests in both Argentina and Chile, the only two South American nations that have not broken diplomatic relations with the Axis. Welles had pointed out last month that these two countries were allowing their territory to be used by Axis agents and the political repercussions of the declaration still are felt in South America.

President Juan Antonio Rios of Chile postponed a visit to the United States because of the Welles speech and also reorganized his cabinet, because of a resulting domestic furor. Whether the new Chilean cabinet will take steps to break its diplomatic ties with the Axis, however, remains to be seen.

In today's five-hour meeting of the Inter-American Committee the Chilean delegate energetically opposed publication of the U. S. memorandum, and the Argentine member abstained from voting.

Axis Spy Ring.
The memorandum charges that the Axis spy ring transmitted to Germany information about the arrival and departure times of ships touching the west coast of South America, data on U. S. activities relative to military and other aid given to South American countries, and Latin American defense measures. It said the U. S. Federal Communications Commission had intercepted the messages.

One of the conclusions of the memorandum said: "The (Nazi) organization sought to bribe a diplomat of one American nation to get information about the Panama Canal, expressed a desire to use as a spy agent of one of the members of the Chilean air defense who was invited to follow a training course in the United States, sent German specific details of traffic and cargoes of Chilean ships, including information on the Chilean ship Tolten, which was sunk on its last trip to the United States, sent last trip to Germany by data on hydrographic maps in Chile, military aid from the United States and weather reports."

Santiago Hears Rios Again Invited to U. S.
SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 3.—(AP)—U. S. Ambassador Bowers was reported tonight to have reiterated President Roosevelt's invitation to Chilean President Juan Antonio Rios to visit the United States.

First Lady, on London Tour, Learns About War Canteens

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt took a look into both the practical and the intellectual sides of the American woman's future in war and peace today.

At the food ministry, Lord Woolton told her "any employer who doesn't look out for feeding his workers belongs to a bygone age."

"I'm afraid, then, that many in the United States belong to a bygone age," Mrs. Roosevelt remarked.

Lord Woolton gave her many facts about the war canteens which serve meals to workers for the equivalent of 20 cents.

At a luncheon given for her by Dame Rachel Crooky, an informal ministry regional adviser, she

Nationalists Hurl Eggs at General Justo

Withholding Support of Democracies Called 'Suicidal' by Argentine

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 3.—(AP)—A group of Nationalists hurled eggs and tomatoes at former President Augustin P. Justo today as he was leaving a luncheon where he had declared it would be "suicidal" for Argentina to withhold her support from the Democratic cause.

Five men were arrested for participating in the demonstration, which was followed by a series of fist fights between supporters and opponents of General Justo outside the hotel where the luncheon had been held.

About 100 persons were said to have been involved in the street brawl and one man was injured slightly. The demonstration occurred as the former President in the company of Senator Alberto Barcelo and Deputy Justo Rocha. First reports said one of the missiles hit Justo and soiled his clothing, but he denied he had been hit.

He previously had been the object of hostile demonstrations by Nationalist elements because of his demands for close co-operation with the United States and other American republics.

He was the guest of honor today at a luncheon of the British Chamber of Commerce, which was attended by U. S. Ambassador Norman Armour and other United Nations diplomats.

He said in his speech that the only basis for a durable peace was "the triumph of the United Nations."

New Trial Motion Granted Marvin Dixon

DUBLIN, Ga., Nov. 3.—Judge R. N. Hardeman, of Louisville, has granted a motion for a new trial in the case of Marvin Dixon, charged with the murder of W. Clyde Smith, Wadley filling station operator and former warden of Johnson county farms. Smith was killed at Wadley last January 9.

Dixon, one of four men arrested in connection with the crime, was tried, convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment.

RAF HERO KILLED.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Treasury Secretary Morgenthau has received word that RAF Sergeant Donald M. Huntley, one of the 15 British and American war heroes who toured United States cities last summer in the War Bond drive, had been killed on a bombing raid over Germany.

OPA's Spengler Is Educator... But Prefers You Omit 'Doctor'

(Editor's Note: This is one of a series of articles dealing with the then in Atlanta whose unusual war-time jobs affect the lives of the American public.)

By BETTY MATHIS.
When an announcement is made in Washington regarding new price regulations, it is not the nation's capital which gets the kick-back. In the southeast, it's apt to be Joseph J. Spengler (pronounced Spangler).

"Just let Washington make a new price regulation. Our already heavy mail picks up terrifically. Sometimes I don't know how we even get it opened. But we manage somehow, and we get the questions answered," the regional OPA executive declared.

Despite the fact he holds a Ph. D. degree from Ohio State, and a full professorship at Duke University, the price executive is plain Joe Spengler, and he would prefer that you not call him "doctor."

250 Price Schedules.
As he describes his job, it's that of handling the technical aspects of the price control program in this region. About 250 regular price schedules are his responsibility, in addition to a number of changing temporary schedules.

The work of educating both the public and the merchant to the contents of these schedules is also a part of his work, as well as making studies to see that the provisions of the price ceiling regulations are carried out.

In addition, Spengler supervises a good deal of research work in order to fix price ceilings on commodities such as firewood and milk, which present production cost problems peculiar to this region.

Milk Real Problem.
"Milk is a real problem," Spengler said. "The supply here is not sufficient to meet the new heavy demands made by the Army. If we could just manufacture cows, we could solve the problem in no time." In the absence of that ability, Spengler has to scrutinize production and transportation costs which arise in supplying the southeast with milk.

To administer the price control program in the eight states in this region, there are six district offices and eight state offices, each staffed with a specialist on food and drugs, apparel, services, specialties, commodities, and any other type of consumer goods industry which may be concentrated in the particular area.

There is in addition a survey and analysis man, and from four to six or seven "price aides," to help in the various phases of the program.

Co-ordinating Office.
Problems which trouble the state offices are passed on to the regional offices, and Spengler, who is in charge of the regional office, usually, this office acts as a sort of co-ordinator," Spengler explained.

"In general the problems of retail trade are administered within the state organization. Our office handles most of the wholesale problems and some of the manufacturing price problems, though the latter are often referred to Washington."

"Our biggest job in the regional office is to acquaint the public (the retailer and the purchaser) with his obligations under the price regulations. We are here to help the businessman. In cases where an adjustment upwards over his March ceiling price seems necessary, we help him get such an adjustment."

Ex-Newspaperman.
The actual administration of the broad price policies laid down in Washington is placed in the regional offices, Spengler pointed out. This follows the policy of decentralization in the work of the national war agencies which is placing more and more power in regional offices.

Spengler is a tall, broad-shouldered, black-haired man with snapping black eyes that don't miss a trick. Combined with his seemingly boundless knowledge of economics and business administration, are the qualities of good showmanship which probably are the result of the time he spent as a newspaperman—"I wrote everything but society and advertising" on his home town paper in Ohio.

In addition to his studies at Ohio State he took graduate work at Brookings Institute in Washington.

He has taught at Ohio State, the University of Arizona, the University of North Carolina and at Duke, where he has been on the faculty for the last 10 years. He came to OPA in May of this year. He is on leave from the Durham school, where he is professor of economics and business organization.

Defeat of Axis Seen as Boon To Capitalism

Revival of Full Output Predicted by Thurman Arnold.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Defeat of the Axis will make the capitalist system work better than ever before because it will revive full production, Thurman Arnold, United States assistant attorney general, declared tonight.

Speaking under the auspices of the Ottawa public affairs council, Arnold said the democracies had erred in believing Germany and Japan were headed for bankruptcy because their sole economic policy had been production. "We now see our error," he said, "and out of the realization of that error can come the economic vision of the future."

The war, the assistant attorney general went on, "is compelling us to face the realization that only production is wealth and that nothing else can give either economic or military strength."

He said production following a United Nations victory would create millions of jobs which would result in more abundant housing, cheaper transportation, trains, automobiles, airplanes and fuels.

The assistant attorney general assailed depression talk as a "phobia in the background of the present struggle of private groups to get themselves in position of power over our economy while the war is going on."

"When we get rid of that phobia, we will in truth be United Nations," he asserted.

He charged for years the United States had been exploited by a few dominant groups which refused to allow independent enterprise to add to the productive wealth of the country.

Budget for '43 Real Headache For City Heads

Burden of $685,000, Plus $300,000 Tax Loss Looms.

City of Atlanta officials yesterday were wringing their customarily smooth brows and gnawing nervously on their fingers as they launched into the job of trying to figure out finances for next year, a problem made doubly difficult by a prospective $300,000 loss in taxes and a darned good chance they will have to maintain 10 per cent bonus payments to all workers whether they like it or not.

All together, say some of the financial geniuses of the city government, the 1943 budget may have to carry a burden of approximately $685,000 more than was scheduled for 1942 expenditures, plus the $300,000 loss in revenue.

Murphy's Opinion. There is a division of opinion among the money men of the local government whether the 10 per cent bonus must be paid next year, as it voluntarily was this year, but J. Charlie Murphy, assistant city attorney, declared he believes the recent pay and salary rulings by James F. Byrnes, economic stabilization director, make it mandatory.

Byrnes decreed that there were to be no decreases in salaries under $5,000 (except for certain causes), and the term "bonus" was specifically used in his regulations.

The city voluntarily paid non-school employees a total bonus of $325,000 this year, and supplied $360,000 more for school workers.

Face Revenue Cut. Alderman Ed Gilliam, chairman of the finance committee, said that in addition to the possibility of having to pay out this $685,000 again in 1943, the city definitely will lose about $300,000 revenue through decreases in the values of accounts receivable and inventories on merchants' stocks.

Meanwhile, all department heads are busily reporting their 1943 requirements to B. Graham West, city comptroller, and he will compile the figures for the 1943 budget from these. The council must make ready for the next year's budget before the end of this year.

Gilliam said he was going to contact governmental officials, including Senator George, soon to determine whether Byrnes' regulations apply to the city government. Mayor Hartsfield said he thought that in some cases they would not, while Murphy asserted the rules do include city governments.

Health Menace Of War Project At Milner Cited

Sewage Drain Would Endanger 15,000, Says Abercrombie.

Proposed location of a military project in the vicinity of Milner, Ga., in Pike and Upson counties was objected to yesterday by Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, state public health director, on the grounds it might endanger public health in that section.

In a letter to War Secretary Stimson, Dr. Abercrombie said the site of the proposed project, south of Griffin, drains naturally into Potato creek which he said was the source of water for three communities with a total population of about 15,000.

Menace Cited.

He declared he believed that sewage from the project would "seriously increase the menace to public health," even after "reasonable treatment."

Dr. Abercrombie wrote that "if the sewage is pumped to the only other alternate drainage basin, it would discharge into a stream being used as the source of water for the city of Macon and other places."

"This department has been consulted on certain proposed sites in the state and has made its records as well as its personnel available to the site board. At other times we have not been consulted."

George Gets Protest. "It is my opinion," he added, "that the war effort could be promoted to greater advantage if the record, experience and knowledge of local conditions, available at the health departments, were utilized by the site boards, and the recommendations of these health departments were given consideration before sites are finally selected."

While the War Department in Washington neither confirmed nor denied receipt of the letter, and declined discussion of the proposed project—the nature of which is subject to censorship—the office of Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, announced he had received protests against its establishment in the Milner vicinity. Source of the complaints received by George was not made known.

U. S. Soldiers in Britain To Give Turkey to Sick

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—United States soldiers in Britain will give up turkey on Thanksgiving so that the wounded and ill in British hospitals may enjoy it.

Thousands of pounds of plump American turkeys shipped here for the troops will be sent instead to hospitals and soldiers will eat ordinary fare, perhaps including chicken.

Thousands of cases of American fruit and vegetable juices also are being allotted to hospitals, bringing the American Army rations closer to the British model, which United States soldiers gradually are adopting in order to save shipping space.

Japs Try in Vain To Get Their First Fortress by New Method

HEADQUARTERS OF U. S. FORCES IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, Oct. 28.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Unable to down a single Flying Fortress with their machineguns and cannon in two months of aerial warfare in the Solomons, the Japs are trying a new technique—bombing the bombers.

Jap Zeros float (ponton-equipped) planes have been flying about 1,000 feet above the Fortresses over Guadalcanal and trying to drop bombs on them in the air. So far, not a hit has been scored, and American gunners, wise to the trick, have found the Zeros easy targets at that distance.

In the first attempt to bomb a B-17 in the air last October 13, Tail Gunner Sergeant Robert Lowrie, of Shippensburg, Pa., saw a bomb flash past his plane and splash into the water. A few seconds later the bombardier, Lieutenant James Copeland, of Timmonsville, S. C., saw another bomb explode ahead of the Fortress' nose.

NO IDLE AUSSIES.

PERTH, Australia, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Prime Minister John Curtin said that not a single physically fit man in Australia was idle today as he opened a $321,000,000 austere loan campaign.

ONLY VITAL OUTPUT.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Hugh Dalton, president of the Board of Trade, disclosed today that he was "taking steps" to stop all production which does not serve "a real war purpose."

Fund Workers Will Rally, Hear Marines' Frost

Major Will Speak Today Before Final Noon Report Meeting.

Major Meigs O. Frost, hard-hitting intelligence officer for the Marines in the south, will be the principal speaker today at 12:30 o'clock at the Athletic Club when workers in the Community Fund Appeal gather for the final noon report meeting of the solicitation period.

The Appeal is scheduled to end in a Victory report rally Friday at 6:15 o'clock.

Major Frost, nationally known as a writer, was one of the founders of the Community Chest in New Orleans.

C. A. Stair, general chairman of the Community Fund Appeal, addressed an urgent plea to all volunteer workers yesterday that they complete their assignment as soon as possible and attend the two final report meetings with complete reports.

"We are at the critical stage of the appeal," he said, "with all conditions favorable for a magnificent success. Giving has been on an increased level and what is in, so far, is well in advance of previous years."

"The fact remains, however, that much less than half of the cards are in and only three working days remain before the last reporting."

"It will be doubly tragic if we must mark up another failure this year."

"Atlanta is willing and able to give this year and is determined to have a successful appeal. This has been demonstrated by actual results so far."

"If every worker makes this early promise real so far as his own responsibility goes, we shall wind up Friday with a glorious victory."

The first three report meetings of workers, resulted in pledges of $296,725 through Monday noon. Since that time, the 4,000 volunteer solicitors have been engaged in a sweeping cleanup effort. The minimum budget requirements of the 32 member agencies of the Fund, which serve more than 60,000 people every year, is $625,089.

Governor-Elect Is Speaker At Mikell Portrait Ceremony

By SALLY FORTH.

WHEN THE KAPPA ALPHA fraternity presented the portrait of the late Rt. Rev. H. J. Mikell, former bishop of Atlanta and chancellor of the University of the South, to the university last Sunday in Sewanee, Tenn., the address of presentation was made by Georgia's future Governor, Ellis Arnall. You see, the governor-elect is a "Sewanee man," and both he and Bishop Mikell belonged to K. A. He and Mrs. Arnall motored to Sewanee on Sunday, where the ceremony took place at 4 o'clock in the university library, and afterwards they were guests of honor at a reception given at the K. A. fraternity house for the students, faculty, and residents of the community.

Morse Kochitzky, head of the K. A. chapter at the University of the South, presented the portrait to Dr. Alexander Guerry, vice chancellor. It was painted by Dr. Edward McCrady, professor of biology at the college, and will hang in the library as a fitting memorial of the distinguished churchman who was at one time knight commander of Kappa Alpha.

Governor-elect Arnall graduated from the University in 1922, and there he was pledged to K. A. He received his law degree from the University of Georgia in 1931, and when he takes office next January, he will be the youngest Governor to hold office in the country. Which is a matter of considerable pride to his fraternity brothers.

DURING the past few days Mrs. R. E. Cook has received 16 letters which she terms as "among the most interesting" she has ever read. It all happened because a group of college belles at Randolph-Macon wanted to show their appreciation for being included among those who enjoyed a "Halloween box" which Mrs. Cook sent her attractive young granddaughter, Cortez Coolidge, who is a freshman at Randolph-Macon. Last week Mrs. Cook filled a box with all manner of goodies and Halloween favors and sent them to Cortez, who in turn, entertained 16 of her classmates at a party. The girls were quick to voice their enjoyment of the party in notes to Mrs. Cook, who, it is needless to say, prizes them very highly.

Cortez is rooming with Jean Walker, of Tulsa, Okla., and has pledged Phi Mu at college, as have three other Atlanta belles, Julia Carter, Marian Merts and Ruth Lambert. Among other Atlanta girls who have been pledged by Randolph-Macon sororities are Estelle Anderson, Pi Beta Phi; Lucia Fairlie, Zeta Tau Alpha, and Betty Brown, A. D. Pi.

WHEN Mary Ann Blew, attractive young daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Michael J. Blew, who attends Indiana University, was summoned to the office of Professor John E. Stempel at the university recently, she was convinced that the "little trip to the office of the head of the journalism department" could mean nothing short of disaster. But, to her surprise, she (with five other girls) was awarded the highest honor the school can confer upon a woman journalist—that of membership in Theta Sigma Phi, national honorary and professional fraternity for women in journalism.

Mary Ann has been reporter and assistant editor of the Daily Student, the creditable newspaper of the university. She is historian for her sorority, Zeta Tau Alpha, and is secretary for the Panhellenic Council. Her other campus activities include membership in the French Club.

Ever since Colonel Blew was transferred here about a year ago for duty with the Fourth Service Command, he and his family have resided at the Pershing Point apartments on Peachtree. They formerly lived in Philadelphia, and since coming here have taken an active part in civilian and military affairs. Mrs. Blew is a valued member of Wom Atlanta Woman's Club, among other activities which claim much of her time and attention.

ALLEN GENTRY WOODSIDE, who is in Winter Park, Fla., for the winter, is being royally entertained at a number of informal social affairs given by residents of the popular resort. She is with her sisters, Mrs. Milton Carlin and Mrs. Graham Phelan, with whom she will remain for the season.

Yesterday Mrs. Woodside was central figure at the bridge luncheon at which Mrs. Laura Welsh was hostess, and today Mrs. Harry Hassen, a popular former Atlantan, will honor the visitor at a luncheon and bridge party. Others planning parties for Mrs. Woodside are Mr. and Mrs. Will Burchil, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Mahaffey and Mr. and Mrs. George Carlin.

Among affairs already given for the Atlantan is the buffet supper at which her sister, Mrs. Milton Carlin, entertained on Sunday evening, the event having assembled a group of mutual friends of the hostess and honor guest.

Mrs. Woodside is a frequent visitor to Winter Park, and her stays are always hailed with delight, for she counts her friends there by the score.

College Park Club.
Dr. Ashby Jones will be the guest speaker at the College Park Woman's Club this afternoon at 3 o'clock. He will be introduced by Dr. B. D. Gray.

The program chairman, Mrs. T. H. Porch, announces the program will be on the subject of "Education."

The Richardson High School Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Ruth Barron, will present a musical program.

MISS COATES BENEDICT TRIMBLE.

Miss Coates Trimble, Athens, Betrothed to Arnfin Olsen

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 3.—Enlisting the cordial interest of a host of friends of the young couple is the announcement made today by Lieutenant Colonel Richard Brodgon Trimble and Mrs. Trimble of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Coates Benedict Trimble, to Arnfin Olsen, who is at the Officers' Candidate School at Fort Benning.

Miss Trimble is the only daughter of her parents, and the sister of Lieutenant Harry White Trimble, of the U. S. Army Air Corps, Wright Field, Ohio. Her mother is the former Miss Anna Coates Benedict, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John A. Benedict, prominent Athens citizens, and the niece of the late Dr. and Mrs. Henry Clay White, of the University of Georgia. The bride-elect's paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. William Wiley Trimble, of Adairsville. She is the great-granddaughter of Colonel John W. Gray, who served with the Confederate army in the War Between the States.

The lovely future bride graduated from Athens High school and attended Virginia Intermont College in Bristol, Va. For the past year she has held a position in the U. S. Army Quartermaster Depot in Atlanta.

Mr. Olsen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Olsen, of Brooklyn, N. Y., formerly of Norway. He attended school in New York before entering the service and was with the paratroops prior to becoming a member of the Officers' Candidate School at Fort Benning.

Deep Dene Club.
The Deep Dene Garden Club will meet today at 10:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. H. W. Ridgely, 615 Ridgecrest road, with the president, Mrs. F. A. Jordan, presiding. Mrs. C. L. Rhodes will be co-hostess.

Mrs. M. J. Watts will talk on "My Garden" and Mrs. J. O. Anderson will talk on "Bulbs."

After the business meeting luncheon will be served by the hostess.

Elections Held By Spinster Club
Miss Mathilda Turner was elected president of the Spinster Club at the recent meeting at which new members were chosen.

Other officers elected were: Misses Betty Greve, vice president; Nancy Woodward, secretary, and Jean Fraser, treasurer.

New members are Misses Jane Woodruff, Emily Pruitt, Peggy Sheffield, Bertie Beers, Julia Bienvenu, Joan Jagels, Frances Richardson, Betty Tucker, Ann Dupre, Emma Jean Clifton, Margaret Graham, Mary Cline, Joyce Mathews, Ruth Maroney, Helen Walkley, Hayden Fleming, Julia Brewer, Jean Cantwell and Marion Moise.

Special Exercises For Office Workers

By Ida Jean Kain.

You have to be in good condition to sit down and work all day. And that, so Gene Tunney says, is the reason the WAVES need a physical fitness program. They aren't expected to get tough. But they are going to have to get in shape to take over men's work. They will have to work just as efficiently and for just as many hours as the men did. Besides taking daily calisthenics, they are drilling for that military bearing.

Everybody is working harder these days. If those girls need a daily dozen, certainly the average office worker does. Don't skip exercise entirely and think you can go on working at top speed. It will gradually eat down on your efficiency. Your brain and nerves get tired, but you need a healthy physical fatigue. The only way you can get it is through a set of exercises.

Your program should include not only exercises to counteract that desk-chair spread, but a few good circulation rousers, and one or two antidotes to the forward bending you do all day. Even though your quarters are cramped, you can swing through this set.

Position: Standing, feet apart and arms down at side.

Movement: Up on toes, and fling your arms out and up at the sides. Swing arms back, letting them cross in front, as you lower heels to floor. You can work up a fine rhythm with this exercise. It really gives you a lift. Repeat 20 times.

Position: Stand with arms down at sides, feet together, and in good posture. Pull up with your stomach muscles and stretch slim through the midriff.

Movement: Fling arms up and out at sides and swing left leg straight out at side. Keep knee straight and swing from hip. Back to position and repeat 10 times. Relax, then perform with other leg.

Position: Stretch arms overhead and clasp hands, palms turned outward, feet apart.

Movement: Hold the upstretch through the middle and bend directly sideward. Stretch straight again, and bend to the other side. That one wrenches off the inches.

One of this season's smart new ideas is "winter white," seen here in a simple street dress. The material is 40 per cent wool, 60 per cent rayon, and it is woven to look like wool. The skirt is gored to provide becoming fullness, and slashed inset pockets are placed on the hips. There are three-quarter sleeves, a collarless neckline which is emphasized by a stitched yoke. Gold nail-heads trim the belt. This dress is priced at only $12.98 and is modeled by Mrs. Jesse Bullock. With her is Corporal McGee, of the 507th Parachute Infantry, Company D, Fort Benning, Ga. For the name of the store carrying this dress, call Winifred Ware, WA. 6565.

Little Danger of Overdose of Vitamin D

By Dr. William Brady.

Anent the practice of adding vitamin D to oleomargarine in England (writes the technical director of a food corporation) we are pleased that you made it clear that in England when they speak of vitaminizing margarine they refer to the addition of vitamin D. In America vitamin A is added to margarine and, as the Vitamin A is derived from fish liver oils, of course some vitamin D is included with it, but the American Medical Association Council on Foods forbids us from specifying how much vitamin D we add (we have always maintained a ratio of one unit of D for each 50 units of A in our product). We agree also that vitamin D is more likely to be lacking in the every-day diet in this country than is vitamin A. According to various biological assays the ratio of vitamin D to vitamin A in fresh cow's butter is generally from 1 to 100 to 1 to 40.

In the second place (continues the food corporation's technical director) vitamin D in a food has frightened many people away from it since the bugaboo about overcalcification was raised some years ago.

Finally, observes the technical director, strangely enough, we doubt that it would be well to add significant amount of vitamin D to margarine even though vitamin D is probably inadequate in American diets. The proposal to do so brings up a whole series of questions inherent in using any food as a carrier for vitamins in quantities not natural to it. (End of the technical director's communication.)

It is odd that the t. d. or his employer considers it all right to add vitamin A to a food that naturally contains none or practically none, yet under the throttling hold of the A. M. A., doubts the wisdom of adding vitamin D to a food that naturally contains little or none, although he acknowledges that lack of vitamin D is probably more common than lack of vitamin A.

The government in England proposed to add enough vitamin D to margarine to provide a little more in each ounce of margarine than a child gets in the yolk of an egg. The technical director uses the right term for the attempt to frighten people away from vitamin D—it is a bugaboo. It is just one of those little yarns. The actual experience of good physicians in thousands of cases has shown that even massive doses of vitamin D cause no such "overcalcification," and there is no evidence whatever that ordinary or adequate amounts of vitamin D ever do any one any harm.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—The entire day is a time to be cautious. The feelings of people around you may be extremely sensitive, or you may meet chilly receptions which are not constructive toward getting good results.

April 20-May 20 (TAURUS)—Before 10:30 a. m. drastic tempers may be in evidence, and the period does not favor seeking co-operations from those who have a determined outlook.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—Previous to 2:30 p. m. is a favorable period for communications, studying and especially auspicious for attending to personal needs.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—Between 10:31 a. m. and 6:30 p. m. much good may be accomplished in routine matters especially affairs pertaining to the home, property and household interest providing you do not over-reach and agree to assume too large a burden.

July 23-August 22 (LEO)—Before 8:10 a. m. take particular pains to make your motive clear to other people unless you have a special reason for concealing them. Mystery and confusion may easily creep into affairs started before this hour.

August 23-Sept. 22 (VIRGO)—Today will be a most favorable day for availing yourself of all opportunities for expansion, agreements and conferences. People with idealistic and humanitarian people, are likely to result into greater good than you had anticipated.

Sept. 23-Oct. 22 (LIBRA)—You may find this a hard day when you may be called to task for something, but if you will give your strict attention to necessities, this can be made a most favorable period.

Oct. 23-Nov. 21 (SCORPIO)—Bargaining, trading, buying and selling, contracts, communications and travel should result most happily before 2:43 p. m. After 2:43 p. m. pleasures and sociability may not bring you the joy you expect.

Nov. 22-Dec. 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—Previous to 2:12 p. m. it will be well to avoid quarrels, arguments and acting impulsively. Between 2:12 p. m. and 7:34 p. m. favors dealing in land, with older people and those with conservative ideas.

Dec. 22-Jan. 19 (CAPRICORN)—Today is probably the most auspicious day of the week favoring general business, buying and selling. An excellent day for decisions in general.

Jan. 20-Feb. 18 (AQUARIUS)—If you have someone special to contact and want your interview to proceed smoothly, make your engagement before 12:08 p. m. and 1:08 p. m. This period also favors work requiring mental activity.

Feb. 19-March 20 (PISCES)—The morning hours and until 1:29 p. m. are filled with influences that produce harmony, peace and agreeableness, at which time you can put forth much effort in matters dealing with land, literary pursuits and dealings with the public.

Six-Foot-Three Film Star Tells The Woes of the Poor Tall Man

By FRED MacMURRAY.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Did you ever see a real tall man laughing just for the fun of it? I'll bet you never did. Walking around with your head up in the clouds doesn't get you anything but bumps from light fixtures and door jams. Being tall is no laughing matter. You have to go through life with your head bowed.

Take fat men. They breeze right through life breaking things and still getting all the breaks. If a portly gent knocks over a 17th century vase it is just another laugh. Let a tall man smash a 10-cent store glass and he's a clumsy oaf. Did you ever see a tragically fat man? Of course you never did. They can't even train them to be tragic. They have got life licked.

I'm awfully glad of an opportunity to get some of these things off my chest. I began paying full fares everywhere I went before I was 11, for nobody would believe that a kid almost six feet tall could be under age. A lot of people think that it is the woman who pays, but I have been paying and paying all of my married life, mostly for the antiques I broke in my own home.

I never will forget my first interview in the movies. I was wearing a rented dress suit with tails below my knees and a silk hat that kept getting intimate with a rafter. I've forgotten the name of the picture, but I must have looked like the Pithead Man. A lady columnist of that era dropped in and I was introduced. She looked me over from head to foot and circled me twice. Then she said: "Ha, every other inch a man," and walked off the set.

Short men are lucky fellows, too. They can double up in revolving doors and elevator starters always let them get on no matter how full the car gets. Short men are always clever. You'll find them at the head of the class on graduation day and behind the biggest desks in the business world. Napoleon was just a little guy with a cocked hat. Imagine me in a cocked hat!

Short men, fat men and ordinary size men have to worry about themselves occasionally, but an unusually tall man has to think about himself all the time. It isn't vanity, it's just self protection. I would have more bumps on my head than an Idaho potato if I walked around like an ordinary man. You ought to try living in a world built for regulation-size people when you are a bit on the Eiffel Tower side. I've always envied the slide trombone and the accordion when I was traveling. It would be wonderful to fit something.

I've often been asked if I found it difficult to play opposite small leading ladies. The answer is no. No director ever had to cut a hole in the floor for my legs nor build a platform for the lady in any of my pictures. What about love scenes? Well, that's where the MacMurray technique comes in. After all I've been tall most of my life—and a fellow learns.

Then, too, height has its compensations. I find my reach quite helpful in fly casting!

MY DAY: A Georgia Boy Hails Mrs. Roosevelt

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

LONDON, Monday.—Early Saturday morning Ambassador Winant took me to an exhibition of aerial photographs showing the damage done by the RAF to German, French and Italian cities.

These photographs, very much enlarged, show up everything on the ground. It is really appalling to see what one big bomb can do, and certainly a well-organized raid with skilled people in planes can leave a city practically in ruins. Once the first start, it must become an inferno, where even trained defense workers can hardly do anything to decrease the damage.

President Benes and Foreign Minister Masaryk of Czechoslovakia came to call at 10 o'clock and then our ambassador, Mr. Biddle, took me to call Her Majesty, Queen Wilhelmina. It was very pleasant to see her again and I was particularly touched by her willingness to come to London so as to save my time.

At 12:30 I visited the British Red Cross and saw samples of various packages they send to the prisoners. Christmas packages were sent off in July, which seems slow delivery, but they put in a great variety of things which must supplement whatever the men are given to eat. Food packages are not sent to special men, but in sufficient numbers so enough packages can be sent to each prison camp for all the men. It is possible for the next of kin to send packages to individual soldiers and the keeping of the records seems to me a very extraordinary piece of work. The headquarters are in old St. James palace and it certainly is curious to see the throne room and banquet hall filled with wooden work tables, typewriters and girls hard at work.

I lunched with the American press and enjoyed seeing some familiar faces. Afterwards we met with representatives of the British magazines. Finally, I drove to the home of the Duchess of Kena and made the acquaintance of the President's godchild, who is a very lovely four-month-old baby.

Back in London, I had a chat with Sir Arthur and Lady Murray and a number of other people who came in for a short time. Then at 8 o'clock I went to see some of the centers open for service men and women. One Y. W. C. A. Center room was given up to dancing and another one to a table tennis tournament.

I saw dormitories below the ground where, during the blitz, people had slept every night and where some girls sleep when beds are not obtainable in other places. I also visited the Y. W. C. A. Center, run for service girls only, where a hundred or more can be accommodated over the weekend. Bed and breakfast costs two shillings, which is about 40 cents, and a fair meal can be had for a little over a shilling. Lastly, we went to the Hans Crescent American Red Cross Club for service men, where a Halloween dance was in full swing and the men seemed to be having a very good time.

As I came out, a boy on the steps asked me if I had liked Magnolia Gardens in Charleston, South Carolina. Another, who lived not far from Atlanta, Georgia, said, "When you come down there, Mrs. Roosevelt, it's like your second home, isn't it?"

HERE'S THAT NEW SUDS MIRACLE THAT'S GOT WOMEN EVERYWHERE BUZZIN'!

MAYBE some of our folks've rung your door-bell. Because we've been asking women everywhere, "What do you want most and foremost in soap for your clothes-washing and dish-washing?" And women kept saying—"SUDS!" Seems that in more suds and longer-lasting suds they find the secret of everything—whiter wash, less back-breaking rubbing and scrubbing, saving on clothes and saving on soap.

And now we've got it...suds like we bet you never saw. You can prove it yourself. Please make this easy test.

HERE'S WHAT MRS. BETTY LYONS OF WEST MEDFORD, MASSACHUSETTS SAYS ABOUT THE "MILK-BOTTLE SUDS TEST" SHE MADE

"HERE'S WHAT I GOT WITH THE SOAP I USED TO USE. SUDS LOOK THIN AND WATERY, DON'T THEY? AND THEY BUSTED UP QUICKLY, TOO!"

"AND WILL YOU LOOK AT ALL THIS UNDISSOLVED STUFF! IT'S HARD TO RINSE OUT. AND WHEN YOU IRON, YOU GET SPOTS IN YOUR CLOTHES!"

"I NEVER SAW SUCH SUDS AS SUPER SUDS GAVE. RICHER, LIVELIER SUDS, TOO. PLENTY OF BODY. AND THEY LASTED MUCH LONGER!"

Miss McGill Will Conduct Course For Provisionals

Members of the Atlanta Junior League met yesterday at the Piedmont Driving Club, following a luncheon given for the provisional members.

Mrs. Errol Hay Jr., president, announced that the league members would begin working as receptionists at the new prenatal clinic of the Emily Winship Woodruff Maternity Hospital at Crawford W. Long Hospital.

Mrs. William Beers Jr., education chairman, announced that the Miss Ernestine McGill, member of the Atlanta Social Planning Council, would conduct the orientation course for the provisionals. The course, to begin November 9 at 10 o'clock at Junior League headquarters, will feature an outline of the league's activities for the year by Mrs. Hay. Mrs. Green Warren, past director of Region V, will talk on the Association of Junior Leagues of America and Mrs. Edwin McCarty, immediate past president of the league, will give the history of the Atlanta Junior League. The same day at 2:30 o'clock at league headquarters, Miss McGill will speak on "Understanding the Provisional."

Tuesday the provisionals will meet at headquarters at 2 o'clock and will hear a discussion by Miss McGill on "Knowing Your Community and Its Social Problems." Wednesday through Saturday the provisionals will go on field trips to the various welfare agencies which will further acquaint them with the league's activities in serving the community.

On November 16 reports on family and child care agencies will be made at league headquarters at 2 o'clock, and the following day group work agency reports will be heard. Mrs. Eugene Pearce, chairman, and Mrs. William Hamm, past chairman of the Junior League Speech School, will discuss the work done at the school on November 18 at 10 o'clock.

On November 19 at 2 o'clock there will be a report given on health agencies and a general summary made. The course will be concluded on November 20 at 10 o'clock at headquarters with discussions by the various committee chairmen.

Mrs. Charles Hurt Jr., corresponding secretary, announced that interleague transfers to Atlanta in October were Mrs. John W. Kemmerer, the former Miss Elizabeth Holbach, of Short Hills, N. J.; Mrs. Lawton Calhoun, the former Miss Mary Train, of Savannah, and Mrs. Phillip Moseley Russell, the former Miss Martha Webster, of Greensboro, N. C. She also announced that temporary associate memberships were given to Mrs. Gus Ashcraft, Mrs. Inman Brandon and Mrs. Ben T. Smith.

MISS EMILIE COLE.

Miss Emilie Cole Will Wed Lieut. Whitley on Saturday

Of cordial interest is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Forrest Cole, of Plymouth road, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Martha Emilie Cole, to Lieutenant Grover Morgan Whitley, of LaGrange and Camp Blanding, Fla. The marriage will be quietly solemnized Saturday, November 7, at Gainesville, Fla., with Dr. S. A. McCall officiating before only the immediate families and a few close friends.

The bride-elect will be given in marriage by her father. She will wear a suit of rose beige with accessories of brown and her flowers will be bronze orchids.

Lieutenant Jerry I. Harless, of Louisiana and Camp Blanding, will serve as best man for the groom-elect and Miss Cole's only attendant will be her sister, Miss Elaine Cole, who will wear a black dress with black accessories and a cluster of orchids.

Miss Cole is the eldest child of her parents. Her paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Seborn Jesse Cole Sr., of Atlanta, and her maternal grandparents are Mrs. Arthur R. Young, of Atlanta, and the late William David Thrasher, of McDonough. She is the great-granddaughter of Mrs. Mary Bostwick Hooten, of Woodbury.

The bride-elect is a graduate of the Girls' High school of Atlanta, where she was an officer of the Beta Upsilon Mu sorority. She also attended Atlanta Junior College.

Lieutenant Whitley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Edward Whitley, of LaGrange, and the grandson of Mrs. Ellen Whitley and the late J. H. Edward Whitley Sr., also of LaGrange. He is a graduate of Georgia Military Academy, where he ranked as cadet captain adjutant. Upon receiving his commission in the officer's reserve corps he attended Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn until he was called to Officer's Training school at Fort Benning, where he received his commission as lieutenant. He has recently been stationed at Camp Blanding.

Lieutenant Whitley and his bride will make their home in Gainesville, Fla.

Colonel Bragdon To Get DSM Award At Fort McPherson

The Army's Distinguished Service Medal will be awarded to Lieutenant Colonel John S. Bragdon, chief engineer for the South Atlantic Division, in public ceremonies at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on the parade ground at Fort McPherson.

Given by direction of the President, the medal is being awarded to Colonel Bragdon for "exceptionally meritorious service" in his position as chief engineer, from May 13, 1941, to June 30, 1942. Major General William Bryden, commanding officer of the Fourth Service Command, will decorate Colonel Bragdon.

The citation, to be read during the ceremony by Colonel Preston B. Mayson, aide to General Bryden, states that:

"Colonel Bragdon was charged with carrying out a tremendous building program to house the increased Army, construct fortifications on the South Atlantic seaboard, and air fields for an expanded air force; also the facilities urgently needed for the production and storage of munitions and supplies. These requirements were accentuated by the opening of hostilities on December 7, 1941, necessitating additional emergency construction which entailed extraordinary co-ordination to meet the demand for speed in execution. Colonel Bragdon carried out these duties with foresight, energy, and exceptional success."

Such posts as Camp Butler, N. C.; Camp Blanding, Fla.; Camp Stewart, Ga.; Camp Davis, N. C.; Maxwell Field, Ala.; Keesler Field, Miss., and the Huntsville, Va., arsenal were constructed under the supervision of Colonel Bragdon. In addition to war construction, he is in charge of river and harbor works and flood control in the South Atlantic division.

Troops at Fort McPherson will be presented to General Bryden and Colonel Bragdon and members of their staff and the Reception Center band will give ruffles and flourishes and play the "General's March" during the ceremony. Colonel Clifford C. Early, post commander, and Major W. F. Catron, executive officer, will be in the reviewing stand.

Although Fort McPherson is a restricted military post, the public is cordially invited to the parade ground to witness the decoration ceremony, Colonel Early announced. Visitors should be at the parade by 5 o'clock.

PLANE CRASH KILLS 6. LAKELAND, Fla., Nov. 3.—(P)—Crash of a medium bomber killing the crew of six, was announced by the public relations office of the Lakeland air base today. The announcement said the ship crashed about 10 miles from Arcadia, Fla., yesterday while on a routine training flight.

SPAATZ RECEIVED. LONDON, Nov. 3.—(P)—Major General Carl Spaatz, commander of United States Army Air Forces in the European theater, was received today by King George.

City Is Included In OPA Retail Margin Survey

Rome and Albany Data on Clothing, Textiles Also on List.

Allison Thornwell, state OPA director, announced yesterday that Atlanta, Rome and Albany will be among the 120 cities throughout the country in which OPA and the Bureau of Labor Statistics will conduct a survey of retail margins on clothing and textiles.

Information on retail margins for clothing, shoes, pieces and domestics will be gathered from representative stores in each city in an effort to provide the OPA with a more complete record on price problems and distribution. Mr. Thornwell pointed out that the survey is in no way concerned with compliance or enforcement.

The survey has been planned so that it will be complete in all cities before December 1.

MRS. EMILIE DUBOSE ANTHONY JR.

Miss Jaeckel Becomes Bride Of Lt. Emile DuB. Anthony Jr.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Nov. 3.—A wedding veil of exquisite lace which has been in her family for 100 years was worn by Miss Nellie Anita Jaeckel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Julius Jaeckel, when she became the bride of Lieutenant Emile DuBose Anthony Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Anthony, recently. The wedding at the First Methodist church was followed by a brilliant reception at the George Washington hotel.

The Rev. Claude M. Haynes, pastor of the church, read the service which was preceded by a program of music presented by Miss Edna M. Wallace, organist, and Knight MacGregor, soloist.

Bridesmaids were Miss Georgia Marian Jaeckel, the bride's sister, and Miss Anna Ruth Hunt, of Huntsville, Ala., her cousin. Mrs. Harmon Sned, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor.

Out-of-town guests present included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kloeppel, of Jacksonville; Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Edenfield, of Swainsboro, Ga., and Mr. and Mrs. L. Thompson, of Miami, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kloeppel Jr., of Jacksonville.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She chose a gown of ivory duchess satin and carried a bouquet of camellias and anthuriums.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Martha Wallace. Sergeant Nicks was attended by O. R. Myer.

The young couple left for Columbia, S. C., where they will reside.

Writers Place Bulldogs First, Jackets Third

Georgia 138 1-2 Points Ahead of Wisconsin; Irish 4th, Eagles 5th.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Georgia's unbeaten and untied Bulldogs have advanced to recognition as the nation's outstanding college football force without much chance their rivals can do anything about it in the near future.

Georgia's feat in topping Alabama's powerhouse last Saturday brought the Bulldogs to the top of the Associated Press' weekly poll of sports writers today with 84 5-6 first-place votes out of a total of 127 ballots cast.

Wisconsin vaulted into second place by upsetting Ohio State, which had been rated the No. 1 eleven in the country for the first three weeks of the poll. Georgia Tech ranked third. There also was a general reshuffling of the other gridiron greats.

Georgia's schedule in the next three weeks calls for comparatively mild opposition from Florida, Chattanooga and Auburn before their traditional season's finale with Georgia Tech, also unbeaten and untied.

After running second to Ohio State in the previous polls, Georgia was boosted far out in front with a total of 1,189 1/2 points.

Wisconsin received 20 1-3 first-place votes and a total of 1,051 points, based on 10 for first, nine for second, eight for third, etc. The beating by the Badgers kept Ohio State from tallying a single first-place vote.

Georgia Tech, which had been fifth a week ago, supplanted Alabama in third place with 3 5-6 first-place votes and 902 1/2 points. The Southeastern Conference schedule, incidentally, will bring these foes together November 14.

Notre Dame, of all the top ten teams, held its position unchanged from last week, finishing fourth with one first-place plug and 834 5-16 points.

Army and Texas Christian dropped out of the group on the wave of upsets and made room for Pennsylvania and the University of California at Los Angeles.

The standings of the first ten showing total points figured on a 10-9-8-7-etc. basis:

Georgia (84 5-6)	1,189 1/2
Wisconsin (20 1-3)	1,051
Georgia Tech (3 5-6)	902 1/2
Notre Dame (1)	834 5-16
Brigham Young (1)	715
Ohio State (1)	468 5-16
Minnesota (1)	373 5-16
Alabama (1)	337 5-16
Pennsylvania (1)	328 5-16
UCLA	299 5-16

All in the Game

By JACK TROY

Here's a "First" Chief Thad Holt's probably right in thinking that the University of Georgia is the first football team that ever spotted Alabama a touchdown and then came back to win.

Holt, an old Birmingham boy who has been following the fortunes of the Crimson Tide for many years, dating back through the Wade regime, can't recall a single instance in which an Alabama team that was out in front ever lost.

He recalled the Tech-Alabama game in which the Tide ran up a 20-point advantage. Tech came back and scored 19 points.

If this is the record, and it probably is, more power to Georgia. The Bulldogs had to have a lot of what it takes to come back on Ole Miss two years ago. The Rebels had a two-touchdown, plus two extra points, advantage.

This year, in the season opener against an unexpectedly tough Kentucky team, the pressure was on the Bulldogs in no uncertain manner.

It took a slashing fourth-period comeback, led by Frankie Sinkwich, to overcome the Wildcats' six-point advantage.

As time goes on, it is self-evident that the Comeback Kids of Georgia have a lot on the football. They don't wear out; and they never give up.

"Praise the Lord" That was quite a sidelight all of us overlooked, following the Georgia-Alabama game.

Alabama's fine band was seated on the running track on the west side. And after the game, as the crowd left Grant field, the Crimson band struck up "Praise the Lord, and Pass the Ammunition!"

For some 30 minutes thereafter, the band went through a series of popular pieces. There were no sour notes. The boys were cheerful losers, which is as it should be in such a game of football.

And I thought they hit it on the head when they broke out, for their opening post-game concert, with a stirring rendition of "Praise the Lord, and Pass the Ammunition!"

Voting Power Every little hamlet in the midwest has a daily paper . . . or at least by a two-to-one ratio as compared with any southern section.

For this reason, Wisconsin, in any writers' poll, will rank high. I have no thought about Wisconsin being rated above Georgia Tech—except that Tech defeated Notre Dame, which tied Wisconsin. Tech is unbeaten and untied.

Therefore, Georgia Tech nationally should, by all odds, rate ahead of Wisconsin.

Not that it means a thing in the world. Only thing is, in the weekly writers' poll, the voting is not even.

The balance of the power in voting is in the midwest. But I suppose it is counterbalanced by the fact that the balance of football power is still below the Mason and Dixon line. And decidedly so.

Lake Aubrey "Let's stop by Lake Aubrey at Cartersville on the way back," suggested John Martin, as we left Lake Blue Ridge. "I've never missed getting ducks there and we need a few more for our bag."

Martin was not guilty of overstatement there. Any ducks we'd get would help us start a bag.

We slipped into the marsh grass while Martin rowed around Aubrey and, in spite of good weather, we were able to return home with enough blue bills and a little transient which is a second cousin of the Florida Gallinule—the coot to make the trip worth while from a culinary standpoint.

On the trip, including Blue Ridge, we saw one flock of geese, many high-flying flocks of duck, numerous coots.

It indicated that when meaner weather sets in there'll be a lot of good shooting within 100 miles of Atlanta.

Kuhn Second To Sinkwich in SEC Race

By The Associated Press.
Charley Kuhn, Kentucky's triple threat half-back, has broken up Georgia's 1-2 leadership among individual scoring leaders of the Southeastern Conference and is now threatening Frankie Sinkwich's top spot.

Kuhn added two touchdowns and three extra points in Kentucky's 27-6 victory over Georgia Washington, while Georgia's All-American Sinkwich was going scoreless against Alabama. This left Sinkwich ahead of Kuhn by 14 points, 66-52.

Lamar Davis, also scoreless as Sinkwich made his touchdown passes to George Poschner instead last week, dropped to third place.

The field of challengers for the scalp of the undefeated Golden Terror has been sadly depleted. His 67 consecutive victories over the best grapplers in the world, including Strangler Lewis and Ray Steele, has caused Promoter Charley Rentrop to stay awake nights in an effort to find a man who can beat the masked giant.

Reviewing the Terror's matches here, Rentrop is convinced that the man who gave him his hardest match and who has the finest chance of winning a return meeting is Ben (Tiny) Morgan, 310-pound Texan who had the Terror at his mercy here several weeks ago until the Texas giant, in lifting the Terror over his head as he attempted to use his dreaded back-breaker, lost his balance and fell under the huge hooded mountain.

Morgan won a big one-night tournament here several weeks back and except for his loss to the Terror, he has not been beaten here this year. He is big, rough and fast for his weight and has all the weapons needed to beat any man in the ring today.

The Mysterious Mr. X, who is coming along fast and looms as a definite threat to the Terror, will make another appearance in a one-hour battle with Chief Chewacki, the wild and unpredictable Gypsy man.

A one-fall opener will round out the show.

Sinkwich Eyes World's Gaining Record

Georgia Flame Averages 205 Yards a Game

Hollis Warns Bulldogs 'Gator Line Among South's Best.

By F. M. WILLIAMS.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 3.—Warned by scouts that Florida's line is one of the toughest in the south, Coach Wallace Butts sent his Bulldogs through a long passing scrimmage this afternoon, the first workout of the week for 22 boys who did the playing against Alabama Saturday. Coach Howell Hollis, who watched the 'Gators play Maryland, said Coach Tom Lieb had developed a line that is capable of stopping Georgia's running game unless it is at the peak.

Captain Frankie Sinkwich, the lad who tossed the winning touchdown pass against Alabama, was hitting his targets with deadly precision this afternoon.

Sinkwich, incidentally, is headed for a new world's record for total ground gained this season if he can keep up his average of the past seven games. The fireball, mostly by passing, has racked up the neat total of 1,437 yards against five opponents to lead the nation.

Bud Schwenk set the existing record last year when he led the nation with 1,928 yards. Sinkwich has four more games to play which means he will have to average only 125 yards per tilt to break the record. In seven games to date he has an average of 205 yards.

Frankie's best effort was against the University of Cincinnati when he came through with 363 yards on four pass completions and 136 yards rushing.

Against Alabama he was stopped almost cold on the ground, getting only 36 yards, but his passes amassed 231 via air to run his total pretty high.

Georgia will leave for the Florida tilt Thursday morning and will put up at the Inn at Ponte Vedra Beach. Hotel accommodations were not available in Jacksonville.

Florida Works To Upset Bulldogs
GAINESVILLE, Fla., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Spirit ran high in 'Gaterland today as the University of Florida gridgers continued their diligent practice for the annual Georgia tilt in Jacksonville Saturday afternoon.

Tom Lieb, head mentor, sent the 'Gators through extensive offensive drills in a long but light workout that was pointed toward the passing angle of the Florida attack.

In the course of the afternoon the Florida coaching staff unraveled several plays that have been kept on the shelf so far this season in anticipation of the Bulldog contest.

The determined 'Gators took the new assignments and made it apparent that they think they have a chance to upset the Georgians providing the breaks come their way.

Main pointers toward this fact were the passing combinations which never failed to click during the course of the lengthy dummy scrimmage.

FAREWELL RACE CARD.
The $5,000 Dainingerfeld Over-night Handicap, a two-mile race for three-year-olds and up, will headline Empire City's farewell program today. A high class field is expected to go to the post.

CITY BASKETBALL.
The Georgia Power Trojans and John McFarland's defense champions, who swept racked up victories as play in the Southern Girls' basketball league got under way last night at Warren Avenue.

Hargrove, a newcomer on the Trojan roster, was Lewis Baker's strong Seahawk. Hargrove netted 19 points, the Power Seahawks, 34 to 23.

Sara Killian and Moss led the losers with eight points each. The Seahawks trailed by only 10 to 12 at halftime.

Carroll, a league player, kicking her first start in league competition, ran off with scoring honors as Walton defeated Hertz, 19 to 13, in a hard battle. Paradise dropped in 13 points, the big star, Warren Avenue, was second high with 10. Garrison led the Hertz offensive with eight points.

TOPS NATION'S GRID SCORERS—Flashy, hip-swinging Eddie McGovern (above), 20, halfback at Rose Polytechnic Institute, leads collegiate football scorers for the season to date, having collected 106 points in four games. He's made 15 touchdowns and 16 points after touchdown. When Rose Poly drubbed Franklin Saturday, McGovern scored 35 points. Rose Poly is at Terre Haute, Ind.

THE NEW BIG THREE
NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—If football has any new big three this season their names are Georgia, Georgia Tech and Boston College. And you might add that Wisconsin isn't far away.

Any two teams that together can pile up nearly 50 points against Alabama and Duke must have a world of football ammunition. Any team that can beat Georgetown 47 to 0, as Boston College did, can't be crowded too far back.

On our recent trip to Atlanta we tried to lure more than a few experts who had seen both teams offer some opinion of comparative Georgia and Georgia Tech strength.

Most of them were pretty wary. They'll tell you about Georgia's strong line and then about Tech's even bigger one. They'll tell you about Sinkwich and then switch to Castleberry and Prokop. They finish by admitting they would rather wait until the two teams meet in Athens on November 28.

Georgia and Georgia Tech, ancient rivals, have put on more than a few highly spirited classics, but this one should be their all-time top. It is one certain to be closely connected with any national championship.

The Georgia Edge
Georgia now has this edge over Georgia Tech—the Bulldogs have already beaten Alabama. Tech still has Alabama to meet and beat before facing Georgia. It is asking a lot from any team to beat both Alabama and Georgia—for Alabama shouldn't be underrated.

Frank Thomas has a great line and a set of fast-moving backs.

He had everything but the air defense needed to break up Sinkwich passes. Few will have that this season. Few will have that in the two Davis events and Poschner he has three star receivers.

Tech, however, has one of the most dangerous attacking combinations football has ever known—a star passer and a brilliant ball carrier, who can also pass.

They are comparing Freshman Castleberry with Senior Sinkwich in Atlanta today—and are waiting to find out which will be the better all-around man when they meet later on in Athens.

Improving Teams
In addition to Wisconsin and Boston College, Tennessee is another team that has moved well forward after its loss to Alabama.

Wil-Far-B Horses Enter Dallas Show

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Eight thoroughbred horses from the Wil-Far-B Farms, of Atlanta, were the first arrivals today for the Dallas Charity Horse Show November 6-8 which will close out the major season for the entire country.

Entries for the show are scheduled to come from 14 states representing 23 cities. At least 15 entries are assured for each class.

The 36-year-old former pitcher for the Cleveland Indians said he hoped to renew his contract with Little Rock "after we've knocked off those Japs."

Luck Lost to Jackets For Kentucky Contest

Un-Lucky Tech Also Lists Jack Hancock, Jim Kuhn, Wilbur Stein and Al Faulkner as Ailing.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

About the only thing certain about the Tech-Kentucky game Saturday is that the Jackets definitely won't be in their best physical condition of the season.

All of the first-stringers took a pounding against the big Duke line last week and several of them are pretty badly battered. In addition, the team will be without the services of Coach Bill Alexander, who has been confined to bed by his physician for at least two weeks because of illness.

Backfield Coach Bobby Dodd will have to shoulder the responsibility until Coach Alex returns and his job of keeping Tech's undefeated record is not an enviable one.

JIM LUCK.
There is little chance that Jimmy Luck, the team's ace punter, will be ready for the Wildcats, and in yesterday's scrimmage there were four other boys on the sidelines with minor ailments.

Jack Hancock's knee is still giving him trouble; Jim Kuhn suffered a chest injury against Duke; Wilbur Stein hurt an ankle, and Al Faulkner missed his second straight game because of a bum knee.

All are expected to be able to play—except Luck—but won't be able to go at top speed.

And it looks as if it's going to take top speed to beat the tough Wildcats. Three times the men of Ab Kirwan have gone to the Southeastern Conference post and three times they have been turned back, twice by a 6-7 score and again after outplaying Alabama for the first half.

Kentucky has obtained the rightful title of the hard-luck team of the league. Extra points would have given the 'Cats ties with mighty Georgia and strong Vanderbilt.

'CATS IN TOP SHAPE.
To make matters tougher for Dodd is the fact that Kentucky will be in top shape for the battle. Halfback Phil Cutchin, the team's best passer, will return to the lineup after a two-weeks' lay-off. He was the sparkplug as the 'Cats scored the daylights out of the Bulldogs and Commodores.

It is doubtful if Tech will be called upon this year to face two better tackles than Wood and Johnson, the 'Cat stars. After their play against Georgia, Wally Butts remarked he certainly hoped his team didn't have to play against better ones.

Yesterday's scrimmage was confined mostly to reserves with the regulars slated to get their first look at Wildcat plays today in an other knocking session.

'Cats Look Good In Drill for Tech
LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 3.—(AP) If today's workout is any indication, the Kentucky Wildcats intend to soundly defeat Georgia Tech Saturday when the two squads clash in Atlanta.

Coach Ab Kirwan sent his 'Cats through half an hour of offensive scrimmage at full speed, tapering off with a defensive drill against Tech formations.

All available backfields were used in a snappy passing drill, while Phil Cutchin and Jesse Tunstall spent a good portion of the afternoon in a punting session.

A.W.G.A. Plans Turkey Meet
The Atlanta Women's Golf Association staged the qualifying round in its annual Turkey Tournament yesterday at East Lake with 16 players winning the right to participate in the first and second flight match play.

First round matches will be played at the Capital City Club next Tuesday and the second round at Druid Hills the following Tuesday. The finals will be played the Tuesday before Thanksgiving with turkeys going to the winners.

Senator Barkley Disapproves Supreme Court Seat Petition

PADUCAH, Ky., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Circulation of a round robin petition among members of the senate asking President Roosevelt to appoint Senator Alben W. Barkley, Kentucky, to the U. S. supreme court is being done without his "knowledge, consent, or approval," the senator said here today.

The senator arrived at his home Monday night to vote in today's general election. When he was shown the story from Washington reporting that Senator McKellar, Tennessee, was seeking signatures on a petition urging his appointment to the supreme court vacancy, Barkley said: "My attention has been called to an Associated Press dispatch which stated that a round robin petition was in circulation among my colleagues in the senate urging President Roosevelt to appoint me to the supreme court. While I appreciate this compliment paid me by my colleagues, I feel in all fairness that I should say that it is without my knowledge, consent or approval."

"I have consistently declined to give my approval to any effort made by any of my friends to present my name to the President for this high post and that will continue to be my attitude."

Britain Producing New War Locomotive

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—New simplified railway locomotives capable of being used universally to meet war transport needs are now in production, the ministry of supply announced tonight.

The engines, intended mainly for military purposes, will use only four tons of steel casting instead of the 21 used in ordinary construction and thousands of man-hours will be saved in building them. They can haul 700 tons at a speed of 30 to 40 miles an hour.

The new design meets the difficulties of operating on different gauge tracks and provides for easy conversion to the use of any kind of fuel.

Rites Are Held In Thomasville For Rev. Boland

Retired Methodist Minister, Ellaville Native, Dies in New Orleans.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. THOMASVILLE, Ga., Nov. 3.—Funeral services were held this morning from a local funeral home for the Rev. Cornelius C. Boland, who died Saturday in New Orleans. Services were conducted by the Rev. William McTier, of Cairo, with interment in Laurel Hill cemetery here.

Rev. Boland, 57, was the son of the Rev. and Mrs. C. F. Boland, and was born in Ellaville, Ga. He was the fourth in succession in the ministry of the Methodist church in his family, and he had been a member of the Southern Methodist Conference from 1909 until 1925, when ill health compelled his retirement from the ministry.

Marine Wounded at Midway Wants Another Chance at Japs

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 3.—Marine Sergeant Eugene T. Card, of Oakland, Cal.—who got plenty of Jap "scrap metal" in him during the Battle of Midway—has one big ambition.

"I want to get back out there and throw everything at 'em from bullets to the kitchen sink," Sergeant Card declared. He was with 10 miles of Pearl Harbor when the Japanese attack came last December 7 and he was wounded while blasting a Jap carrier in the Midway fighting.

"It's funny," he said, "but you don't feel any pain when a bullet or piece of shrapnel hits you. You don't feel like running away. You want to fight back and fight like hell."

5 Weeks in Hospital.

Sergeant Card came to the Navy pre-flight school here after spending five weeks in a hospital as a result of wounds received at Midway. His squadron took off early on the morning of June 4 and about 150 miles out spotted the Jap fleet through a break in the clouds.

"Zeros were in the air in nothing flat," he said, "and the Jap carriers headed into the wind, zig-zagging like a worm in hot ashes. Before we 'peeled off' for the dive, a burst of bullets came through the hatch and grazed the pilot's head."

"Some of that same stuff must have got me, too, but I was too busy to realize anything was wrong. It was some time later before I realized what caused that numbness in my knee and my ankle and my neck. It was that 'scrap iron,' all right."

Sergeant Card's pilot, Captain Richard Fleming, of St. Paul, Minn., went out on his next trip to attack two battleships, one of which was crippled during the previous raid. He did not return.

Now Aviation Cadet.

Knocked out of the Midway battle in the first round, Sergeant Card and five other gunners were flown to a hospital at Pearl Harbor. Now he's an aviation cadet at the pre-flight school, eager to "get my wings" and get another chance at the Japs.

A former employee at an Oakland flying service, he already has a pilot's license and 300 civilian flying hours to his credit. That is in addition to his Marine training and the "ride to meet Hirohito's boys."

Why it takes several whiskies to make a highball perfect!

1. The reason, my friend, is just plain horse sense! For instance, to paint a masterpiece, it takes more than one color.

2. And just as the artist "multi-blends" many colors to achieve perfection...the matchless flavor of Fine Arts comes from the "multi-blending" of several golden-smooth whiskies with other deep-flavored whiskies! And each whiskey is a full 5-years old!

Defense Claims Statement Made 'Under Duress'

Counsel for Six Alleged Saboteur Aides Fights New Evidence.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—(AP)—With two statements by a defendant in the record under protest, defense counsel for six persons on trial on treason charges today fought doggedly against admission of a third, contending it, too, was obtained "under duress."

One of the two statements by Walter Wilhelm Froehling which were approved as evidence by Federal Judge William J. Campbell contained Froehling's admission that he knew his nephew, Herbert Haupt, executed as a Nazi saboteur last August 8, had been trained in Germany to carry on a scheme of destruction of American war industries.

Charged With Aid. Froehling and his wife, Lucille, are two of the defendants. The others are young Haupt's parents, Hans Max and Erna Haupt, and their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Richard Wergin.

All are charged with having given "aid and comfort" to Herbert Haupt after he came to America by submarine last June with seven companions.

The second statement, admitted today, was the first evidence presented by the government that Froehling or any other defendant knew why Haupt came back to the United States from Germany.

The first two statements were obtained by the FBI June 28 and June 30. When the government announced it wished to read to the jury a third taken from Froehling July 2 and 3, the defense demanded to know the circumstances under which it was obtained.

Talks to Froehling. John F. Hennessy, an FBI agent, said another agent had informed the FBI field office in Chicago that Froehling, detained in the suburban Winnetka police station, wished to correct and enlarge upon his two previous statements. Hennessy told the court he was assigned to talk to Froehling.

Hennessy related he talked with Froehling "an hour or so the afternoon of July 2, and for 'several more hours' after dinner. At about 11:30 p. m., he testified, a stenographer was called and "we dictated a third statement in an hour or an hour and a half." After transcription of the statement, he asserted, Froehling read and signed it at 5:30 a. m. July 3. He said Froehling made no complaint of being tired.

Denial by Froehling. Under cross-examination, the FBI agent told Defense Attorney Paul A. F. Warnholtz he knew what information to seek from Froehling because Herbert Haupt had previously made a statement. Warnholtz asked if the intention was to "whip Froehling's previous statement in line with Haupt's." "Absolutely not," the government investigator reported.

With the jury retired, Froehling took the stand to deny any recollection of signing the disputed statement.

2 Truck Regiments

Recruited by ATA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The American Trucking Association announced tonight it had recruited from the industry two truck regiments wanted by the Army for immediate overseas duty on a vital mission.

The organization obtained more than 4,000 voluntary enlistments and assembled on five days' notice a slate of 240 top-flight operating men from which officers ranking from lieutenant to lieutenant colonel will be appointed.

Colonel Mark V. Brunson, of the Army Quartermaster Corps, commanding officer of motor transport for the expedition, directed the recruiting. The new regiments will be activated about November 20.

WE'RE AN ARMY ON ACTIVE DUTY

Truck transportation in Georgia traversing 6,623 miles of highway and reaching practically every community in the state, offers an established network of truck lines with prompt, efficient and flexible delivery and interchange of traffic, bringing far removed markets and bases of supply almost to your own front door.

On active duty on this 6,000-mile front are hundreds and hundreds of men and women engaged in carrying on this essential transportation. The weapons they use are trucks and tractors, diesels and trailers, machine tools and machines, pencils and pens, typewriters and waybills.

The job performed by this huge task force is to get military supplies and material to their destinations—on time—and at the same time provide ample transportation facilities for the needs of our civilian population.

This army is at your service—and the service of our nation—24 hours of every day and every day of the week.
